ALLIES BOAST AIR VICTORIES

PARIS, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Allies reported today continuing triumphs in aerial combat on the western front as the war turned skyward in a manner reminiscent of the dog-fights and flying circuses of World War days.

In contrast with the grim, waiting game on the ground, the French said that their aviators, in American Curtiss and French Morane-Saulnier planes, had shot down 11 German aircraft in three days.

Reports here also credited British fliers with destroying nine German planes in two days.

(Germany confirmed the increase in aerial warfare but disagreed on the results in Berlin declared that German fighters had shot down five enemy planes with only one German loss in six separate encounters over northwestern France in the past two days.)

The French reported they shot down two German planes yesterday, six Wednesday and three Tuesday with only one of their own planes lost.

The British brought down seven Germans yesterday and two Wednesday without loss, correspondents with the Royal Air Force said.

The official French communique today, differing slightly from these unofficial accounts, placed Thursday's conquests at eight, equally divided among the British and French. It may not have taken into account a ninth plane reported shot down late last night in northeastern France.

The communique said:

"Nothing of importance to report during the night.

"On Nov. 23 eight German scouting planes brought down on French territory, four by the R. A. F. and four by the French air force. One of our fighters has not returned to its base."

(The British were using sharpnosed Hawker Hurricanes, which are equipped with eight machine guns in the wings and have been clocked at speeds of 335 miles per hour.

(France's Morane-Saulniers, slightly slower than the Hurricanes, carry only two machine guns but have a 20-millimeter cannon built directly into each engine. Data is lacking on the performance and armament of the Curtisses.)

The French said they believed further purchases in the United States and accelerated domestic production would meet the German plane output.

THOUGH no Allied communique has carried news of flame throwers on the western front, this German picture, showing "pioneer troops" advancing, would seem to indicate this method of warfare has been adopted . . . at least by the Nazis.

RISING TOLL OF 'MINED' SHIPS STIRS BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—British naval experts shaped methods today to combate mines which are taking a rising toll of merchant shipping along the British east coast.

Britons, apprehensively watching the list of sunken ships grow, wondered whether the secret weapon which Germany has hinted she posesses might have entered the war at sea.

Within the past six days more than 25 British and neutral vessels have been sunk, some by German submarines but most by mines.

The British press charges Germany with sowing magnatic, high explosive mines in shallow east coast shipping lanes with mine-laying airplanes and small submarines.

The Admiralty made no pronouncement on reported eye-witness stories by persons who said they saw dark objects splash in the Thames estuary, near London, from German planes Wednesday night.

Naval experts, however, said the

F. D. Hints New U. S. Defense Tax

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 24 (AP) — President Roosevelt disclosed today that some consideration was being given the idea of a special tax to finance expenditures for national defense, which may be increased by $500,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

These defense expenditures, the President indicated at a press conference, will be in eexcess of $2,000,000,000 but probably not as high as $2,300,000,000. He differentiated, incidentally, between appropriations and expenditures for defense.

Germany Cancels Winter Olympics

BERLIN, Nov. 24 (INS)—Nazi Germany today called off the 1940 winter Olympics, scheduled to be held at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

The government cited a ruling forbidding a belligerent nation to act as Olympic host.

Berlin Confirms Damaging Cruiser; To Blockade Britain

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 24—While the German high command claimed that a German submarine torpedoed and heavily damaged the 10,000-ton British cruiser Belfast in the Firth of Forth, Nazi circles asserted today the Reich will impose an air-tight blockade upon England within two months.

The German claim regarding the Belfast was made in an official communique, which said a submarine had reported torpedoing the British cruiser in the Firth of Forth naval base, Scotland.

Insisting the Reich would make quick work of blockading England, informed quarters declined, however, to specify the exact methods they intend to employ.

"AVENGE" EXPORT BAN

It was assumed, however, that the Germans will strive to build up a combined sea and air ring around the British Isles—with a number of surprises in the methods of modern warfare still to be sprung.

At the same time, informed circles also predicted vigorous German retaliatory measures against British seizure of German exports.

One source told International News Service:

"Our announcement that we will return every shot with 10 not only applies to military combat, but in the same sense to the economic field."

Today's official war communique stated that a report published in New York to the effect that the Belfast had been damaged heavily "has now been confirmed."

CRUISER DAMAGED

"There was more lively land scouting and artillery activity on the western front," said the communique.

"The air force continued reconnoitering over France, which resulted in several air battles between German and enemy pursuit planes in which one British craft was shot down near Verdun, one French plane near Saarbrucken and another near Zweibrucken.

"A report that the (British cruiser) Belfast was heavily damaged has now been confirmed by a submarine report that it torpedoed a cruiser of the Southampton class in the Firth of Forth."

Pleas Fail, Nazis Sink Dutch Ship

LONDON, Nov. 24 (INS)—Barely alive after 7½ days in an open boat, five survivors of the sunken 5133-ton Dutch tanker Sliedrecht were landed by a British trawler at a British port on the northwest coast last night, it was learned today.

One survivor said the Sliedrecht had been sent to the bottom by a German submarine.

The submarine's captain, he said, inspected the Dutch steamer's papers, then announced he would sink the vessel. The captain pleaded his ship was a neutral vessel bound for a neutral port, the survivor declared, whereupon the U-boat commander reiterated the necessity of sinking the big tank ship.

War Diary

83rd Day

The war of words continued to hold the limelight with air and sea developments today.

The German high command asserted a Nazi submarine claimed credit for torpedoing and damaging the British cruiser Belfast in the Firth of Forth.

Long-distance German scouting planes returned to the British Isles, flying over the Shetland Islands.

The French said the Allies brought down eight German scouting planes and lost only one of their craft; the German high command said its fliers had bagged three enemy aircraft with no losses.

OTHER WAR STORIES PAGES 13, 14, 15

Eight vessels were added yesterday tothe list of sea victims and Britain studied revised methods to combat mines.

Britain's decision to extend the economic war on Germany by seizing German exports brought a threat of retaliation from Berlin.

Two Britons seized by the German secret police on Nov. 9 on the German-Netherlands border were the center of conflicting reports.

Adolf Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, said one of the Britons, Capt. Richard Henry Stevens, had confessed he used an emigrant German in prewar plots to sabotage German, Italian and Japanese shipping.

In London, authoritative sources said Stevens and his companion, Sigismund Payne Best, had been "kidnapped" while endeavoring to determine whether "peace proposals" from Germans were bonafide.

Nazis Again Fly Over Shetlands

LONDON, Nov. 24 (INS)—German war planes flew over the Shetland islands twice today.

The first raid came in the morning, when the air raid alarm sounded for 90 minutes, and again early this afternoon, when the residents took shelter for 42 minutes.

There was no announcement of bombs being dropped.

Saw Dowd Counting Bribe, Says Jail Aide

Albert Kramer, Charles st. jail officer, got a slap on the back and the promise of a court officer's job after John F. Dowd finished counting $2000 Kramer gave him, the officer told the grand jury today.

This was the first evidence of a direct payment to the ex-sheriff presented to the investigating body. The payment was allegedly made in Dowd's office.

Kramer testified that he had given the $2000 to a courthouse janitor for delivery to Dowd, but that he was not satisfied or sure the payment would be made, so he followed the janitor into the office, where Dowd was counting the money.

"He finished counting the money," said Kramer. "Then he slapped me on the back and said, 'You'll get the first court officer's job there is, mark my words. For the time being, though, you'll have to work down to the jail.' "

TELLS OF PLEDGE

Joseph J. Powers of Beach st., Dorchester, father of five children and for more than 20 years an electrical repairman at the courthouse, also told his story to the jury today. In a pathetic description of the date on which he was told to pay $500, or lose his job, he said:

"I remember it very well. It was the day after my child was killed, Dec. 29, 1938."

"NO PAY, NO STAY"

"Armstrong came to me and he talked like a phonograph record. He said I'd have to get up $500 if I wanted to stay. He said, 'Don't pay, don't stay.' I told him I had just lost one youngster and that I had two others sick. I told him I didn't have a cent and didn't know where I could get it.

"I said I'd been working here for 20 years, but he only said, 'Don't pay, don't stay!' "

Powers described going to Joseph Hartigan of Dorchester, a closed friend to Dowd. He had managed to get $200 on loans. He pleaded with Hartigan to give the money to Dowd. He said Hartigan did not want to do it, but that after

BULLETIN

In a surprise move the district attorney took two of Dowd's relatives before the grand jury today. They were Mrs. Ambrose Donahue, at whose Milton home Dowd was last seen; and Patrolman Cornelius A. Donahue, Mrs. Dowd's uncle, who has been on courthouse duty since Dowd took office.

BANK ROBBED 2D TIME; NAB SUSPECT

WILMINGTON, Nov. 24—For the second time within a month, a lone bandit today held up and robbed the Wilmington branch of the Mechanics Savings Bank of Reading of nearly $1500.

A few minutes after the robbery had been committed, police arrested a Manchester, N. H., youth after a wild chase through Wilmington streets in which six shots were fired. The money was recovered.

According to police, the bandit, identified as the same person who robbed the institution of $1693 on Oct. 28 last, arrived at the bank in a Lowell taxicab.

Ordering the cab driver, William J. LaRiche of Lowell, to accompany him into the bank, the bandit, revolver in hand, walked up to the cashier's window and said:

"I am the fellow that was here a few weeks ago. I understand that I overlooked some money. Give it to me now."

Joseph B. McMahon, cashier, told police the robber then thrust a brief case through the bars of the cage, demanding the money be put into it.

While McMahon was placing the money in the case, Roland Deming, who was in the rear of the bank, sounded the police burglar alarm.

The thief, at sound of the alarm, ordered McMahon to hand over the half filled case and then ran from the bank. He fled in the taxi, leaving the driver in the bank.

Answering the alarm, Patrolman Francis Hogan arrived at the bank just in time to see the taxi speed off.

Hogan gave chase along Middlesex ave., emptying his revolver at the fleeing bandit.

Near Wilmington high school the latter was forced to slow down because of road repairs. Patrolman Hogan here caught up with the car and arrested the driver.

At Wilmington police station the prisoner turned over the brief case with the money intact.

He gave his name as Edward Babson, 20, of Manchester, N. H. Police said he admitted being the person who held up the bank on a previous occasion.

28 Ounces at Birth, Now 20 Lbs.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 24—Laura Mulvey, who came into the world weighing but 28 lunces and was fed whiskey to keep her alive, today tipped the beam at nearly 20 pounds on the eve of her first birthday anniversary.

Laura was born three months ahead of time and clung to life by a slender thread, with the medical profession watching her case with interest.

The infant's mother reported today that Laura not only was lustylunged, but packed a fairly good wallop in her tiny fists.

She also is a devotee of swing music and although the whisky diet long since has been discontinued, the child takes an occasional swallor of beer.

2 HIGH OFFICIALS TO BE CALLED IN PARDON INQUIRY

The legislative commission investigating pardons and paroles today planned to call before it two prominent public officials and a former legislator as the result of the story told by former Rep. Francis E. Ryan of Somerville.

Guilty of perjury, Ryan, to save himself from going to jail, made a 10,000 word statement at a secret meeting of the commission, explaining his part in obtaining a parole for Frank W. Potter, of Cambridge, a convicted murderer.

He said he paid $1000 to a former legislator he met on the State House steps. He said he had cashed a $1500 check given him by a public official to effect the parole and had kept $500 for himself.

Ryan was being closely guarded today by state troopers.

REVEALS $1500 FUND

The Potter parole was granted Jan. 6, 1937, by a vote of the Governor's Council. Executive Sec. William L. Reed's records show five councilors voted for the parole and two against.

Those for were Morton H. Burdick, William G. Hennessey, Daniel H. Coakley, Philip J. Russell and James J. Brennan.

Those against were Frank A. Brooks and Joseph B. Grossman.

The records do not show which councilor made the original motion to grant the parole.

Ryan, who is now on probation for three years, told the investigating commission that relatives of Potter had made up a $1500 fund to effect his release from jail.

This money, in the form of a check, was given to a public official whom the family knew. He in turn passed it to Ryan.

WANTED NAME HUSHED

The then legislator to whom he made the State House steps payment is a relative of a high public official, one of the men to be questioned by the probers. Ryan said the official had approached him before he testified before the investi-

The United States weather bureau today ordered storm warnings posted from Block Island, R. I., to Provincetown.

"A disturbance of wide extent, apparently now about 100 miles west of Bermuda, moving slowly north, will be attended by strong northeast or north winds," the warning said.

Additional warnings to small craft were posted from Cape Hatteras to Cape Cod.

THANKSGIVING GIFT: BOY'S LEG SAVED

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3 (AP)—Thanksgiving was a day for thanksgiving by Alfred Lan Miller, Jr., plucky 7-year-old fam boy recovering in a hospital from a crushed leg.

The physician who has watched Alfred's progress since he suffered a severe injury that amputation appeared inevitable tol him he could regain use of his leg.

Not immediately, of sure, but after a series of operatio he will be able to romp with his playmates.

Thanksgiving Day was responsible indirectly for Albert's plight.

He and his father were mixing feed for 13,000 turkeys. Alfred's leg slipped into the feed grinder. It was an hour and 50 minutes before cutting tools and a blowtorch could release him.

The boy's smiling attitude through the frightful experience led surgeons to halt plans for an amputation as Alfred was wheeled into the operating room. Such bravery required one final effort to save the leg.

After a month the doctor told Alfred he had won the fight.

'Georgia Justice' Girl Gets New Start

LAWRENCE, Nov. 24—Instead of being sent back to Georgia to face imprisonment for the theft of $10, a 16-year-old Braintree girl today began a new start in life in the home of a Cape Cod family. She will attend a business school.

When Georgia authorities announced they were unwilling to pay the expenses involved in an extradition, the girl was set free by Judge Frederic N. Chandler, who placed her in the custody of a half-sister and the latter's husband, a Medford attorney.

The girl will live with a Cape Cod family, it was later learned, and will attend a business college.

Judge Chandler, following the girl's arraignment on a fugitive from justice warrant from Georgia, had expressed the hope Gov. Saltonstall would do everything possible to prevent her from being taken back.

Policewoman Beatrice V. Clark told the court the girl, born in Braintree, had been foisted on one relative after another, but had never been adopted. She had sought her parents in Georgia, but had been unable to find them and had been stranded penniless in Atlanta. It was there, the indictment charged, that she stole a $10 money order, a nightgown and a bathing suit from a landlady.

She had then made her way to Lawrence in the hope she might find work in a mill.

Several Hurt in Riot At Chrysler Plant

DETROIT, Nov. 24 (AP)—Two policemen were hurt and a number of other persons suffered black eyes and minor injuries in a melee at the Chrysler Corporation's main engine plant today as approximately 100 men sought entrance to the buildings.

The officers, neither of whom was seriously hurt, were hit with bricks. Police broke up the fighting promptly and took several men into custody for questioning.

SECOND LOST ARIZONA BOY FOUND

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 24 (AP)—Four-year-old Dale Smith, the second boy to be lost in the sparsely populated Arizona country this month, was found unharmed early today, 10 hours after he wandered onto the desert.

He was separated from his father, Kermit C. Smith, WPA time-keeper, as he attempted to follow him on a wood-gathering expedition.

While a posse was hunting for Dale, seven-year-old Bruce Crozier, who wandered cold and hungry for seven days and six nights in a northern Arizona forest, gravely advised a group of business men not to get lost because "it isn't any fun."

Bruce received a hero's greeting as he arrived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Crozier, and his 11-year-old brother, Bobby, as the guest of W. Roy Wayland, Phoenix banker.

He was far more enthralled, however, by the cowboy hat, red and black plaid shirt, chaps and toy pistol given him by his host.

Bruce became lost from his parents' hunting camp, 60 miles south of Winslow, Oct. 29.

He wandered in the canyons almost a week, sleeping on the ground or in caves.

State O. K. Sought On Tobin Auto Plan

State approval was sought today for a $27,000,000 plan suggested by Mayor Tobin as a means of solving Boston's increasing downtown traffic problem.

The money would be spent in construction of arterial highways and in purchase and razing of run-down property to provide parking space adjacent to shopping and theater districts.

The mayor proposed that the $27,000,000 be obtained through a loan to be floated by the city and amortized over a ten-year period.

NEED LEGISLATION

The amortization fund would be created by retention of the $2,700,000 Boston now contributes to the state highway fund.

Legislative approval of the whole procedure will be asked, according to the Tobin plan.

The plan was tentatively accepted by representatives of business, industrial, transportation, civic and real estate groups at a meeting at the Hotel Statler under sponsorship of police and the Boston Automobile Club.

UNPROFITABLE BUILDINGS

Buildings which would be torn down to provide downtown parking space, according to the mayor's suggestion, would be those now unable to pay sufficient profits to their owners to meet tax claims.

Mayor Tobin said:

"In Boston a woman shopper can get exactly what she wants. She cannot find similar shopping facilities in Waltham, Newton or other suburban communities.

"The people of the outside areas would also come to our theaters to see the big shows first. They would patronize our high-class hotels and restaurants. But they won't come in until we can assure them broad traffic arteries and adequate parking space."

$2000 FOR HOSPITAL FUND

The trustees of the Massachusetts Osteopathic Hospital announced today that an unconditional bequest of $2000 left to the hospital by the late Frank D. Brown, of Belmont, would be applied to the institution's building fund.

Family Custom

Boston University is a family tradition for Charlotte, Marguerite and Grace Houlder, sisters from Raleigh, N. C. They traveled all the way from North Carolina this fall to matriculate at B. U., where their mother and two aunts have graduated. Mrs. Houlder received her degree in 1904 and the two family relatives received theirs in 1896 and 1907 respectively.

Following the family tradition, one of the first things the three girls did at the university was to pledge to Sigma Kappa sorority. Their mother was one of the founders of Delta chapter of the organization at the university.

Soviet, Finn Split Growing

MOSCOW, Nov. 24 (AP)—Soviet Russian newspapers, pressing attacks against Finland, today reported growing difficulties and dissension in Finland over the government's refusal to come to terms with Moscow.

Dispatches date lined Helsinki, Finland, and Tallinn, Estonia, again accused Finnish leaders of wanting to go to war with the U. S. S. R. against the wishes of the Finnish people.

Carter Glass picks Jack Garner as first choice for Alabama's twenty-four votes for Underwood.

The only change in our national policy would be in reading from left to right. Jack would have only to move over a foot to the left.

Carter also thinks highly of Senator Byrd of Virginia for the job which proves one thing. The Democrats do not intend to solve the problem of Republican unemployment.

Governors of N. E. Give Turk the 'Bird'

After a merry round of dinners at which President Roosevelt's predated Thanksgiving holiday and its symbolic turkey were given a good-natured cold shoulder, delegates today settled down to the serious business attending the 15th annual conference of the New England Council.

Turkeys served five Republican governors and guests might better have remained in the refrigerator, judging by the chilly reception they received.

Supreme affront was given by Gov. Lewis O. Barrows of Maine, who gave the turkey the "bird" and feasted on a can of salmon from Eastport, Me. Gov. Saltonstall accepted his invitation to sample the delicacy.

Today's sessions featured an address on recreation by Miss Velma Darling of Lyndonville, Vt., a speech on sectional standards of living by Jonathan Daniels, lecturer; on travel by W. Bruce Machamee, chief of the United States Travel Bureau; on industry by Edmund C. Ruffin of Toledo, on apprentice training by John M. Pierce of Springfield, Vt.; and on private enterprise by Charles McDonough, president of the National Industrial Advertisers Association.

Only Gov. Murphy of New Hampshire was unable to attend opening day activities at which George F. Messersmith, assistant secretary of state, predicted the United States would keep out of war unless goaded by intolerable acts of violence.

Strictly sectional topics were discussed by the five governors at a luncheon. Their keynote of thrift, efficiency and natural opportunities was relieved only by the contention of Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont that farmers will support Federal extension of electrical development to procure service and that they will recognize the interdependence of labor groups.

New England may prove a vital factor in determining victory in the European war by supplying the Allies with necessities of warfare with which "to overcome the totalitarian tyrants," Prof. Frederick L. Schuman of Williams College declared.

KUHN'S 'GOLDEN ANGEL' TO TALK

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Fritz Kuhn's "Heaven-sent golden angel," Mrs. Florence Camp, blonde Hollywood divorcee, took the stand as a rebuttal witness today at the trial of the German-American bund's fuehrer on a charge of grand larceny.

Mrs. Camp, called by the State to elaborate on Kuhn's extra-marital wooing and his financing of transportation of her furniture from Los Angeles to New York and to Cleveland, looked deliberately at Kuhn as she settled back in the witness chair.

Kuhn avoided her glance, staring moodily at the counsel table.

Mrs. Camp wore a black skunk jacket, black turban and dark dress. She appeared at ease, in contrast to her erstwhile suitor's finger-twiddling nervousness.

'ANGEL' UNDER GUARD

A few minutes earlier, the defense had rested, drawing a look of surprise from Kuhn as his counsel, Peter L. F. Sabbatino, announced completion of his case.

Mrs. Camp had been in the protective custody of the district attorney's office for several days awaiting her turn to testify. She divorced her husband with the intention of wedding the bund leader after a whirlwind romance that began on shipboard, only to discover that he was already married and the father of two children.

Kuhn made a brief reapearance on the stand in response to Judge James G. Wallace's request before the defence rested. Judge Wallace wanted more detail on a bund "resolution" which Kuhn filed with the Manufacturers Trust Co. in 137 purporting to give him absolute powers—"from top man to janitor," as he testified—over the financial affairs of the bund.

Kuhn said "yes" when asked if the resolution had been voted on by the bund's board of directors.

gators and asked him to keep the relative's name out of the case.

Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford would make no comment on the case. He explained his ofice had finished with it when Ryan pleaded guilty to perjury and was placed on probation.

He explained also that his office had entered the case only because Ryan committed perjury within his jurisdiction, while the commission was holding its secret hearings at the East Cambridge courthouse.

The commission, however, is far from through with the probe. It was learned today that the members will seek some means of proceedings against the public official Ryan says tried to persuade him to commit perjury.

Certain angles of the case are of interest to the Boston Bar Association also, sources close to the commission revealed. It is believed likely that a special session of the Legislature may be called early next year to consider the special commission's findings.

Truck Driver Freed in Death

Technically charged with manslaughter in death of a helper crushed by a truckload of lumber, Frank Santoli, 21, the alleged truck driver, was freed in East Boston Court today.

Judge Charles J. Brown found no probable cause for indictment of Santoli. The latter liver in Barton st., Boston.

The accident occurred Nov. 17, according to police. Victim was Julius Saffarini, 45, of Cortez st., South End.

He was standing in the rear of the truckload of lumber which was being moved from the rear of the WPA commissary in Meridian st., East Boston

WAITRESS HONORED BY DIVA

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (INS)—Marion McCarthy, a waitress at a New York city restaurant, walked on air all day as she handed out the turkey and cranberry sauce.

For the morning mail brought a special delivery letter from Mme. Elizabeth Rethberg, Metropolitan Opera star, containing two orchestra tickets in row B, for the opening of the opera next Monday night.

The letter said:

"I have not forgotten the pleasant service you gave me nor the interesting little conversation we had when you served me at lunch last Wednesday. You said it was your dearest wish to attend the opening of the Metropolitan Opera season and be part of that glittering event which means so much to music lovers.

"It isn't often that one can be instrumental in making dreams come true, so I embrace this occasion."

Elizabeth Rethberg

The opera will be Simon Boccanegra and Mme. Rethberg will sing in it. Later, Miss McCarthy will visit her in her dressing room.

The waitress, who is 18, lives with her parents and five sisters and brothers at Elmhurst, Long Island. Her father is a public school teacher.

She said she recognized Mme. Rethberg in the restaurant, asked for her autograph and explained that she had been a member of St. Bartholomew's High School Glee Club.

She has no musical ambitions—except to attend an opening night at the Met.

Bishop Curley Gets $216,164

BALTIMORE, Nov. 24 (AP)—A check for $216,164 was presented to Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore today in colorful ceremonies marking the 25th anniversary of his consecration as a bishop.

More than 10,000 persons crowded into the Fifth Regiment Armory for the silver jubilee celebration.

The check was an outright anniversary gift from clergy and laity of the Baltimore and Washington archdioceses, over which Archbishop Curley has jurisdiction.

There were no "strings" attached to the fund, but sources close to the prelate said there was no question but that it would be used chiefly for church purposes. Archbishop Curley has said his ambition was to "die a poor man."

BABSON IN CRASH, SAVES MAN

Benign, white-haired Roger W. Babson, head of the Babson Institute, was involved in a serious auto accident in Newton last night, and then extricated the driver of the other car in the smashup from the latter's overturned machine, it was revealed today.

When Philip J. McHugh, 22, of Parker st., Newton, appeared in Newton court, charged with drunkenness and drunken driving, police said he was arrested after he had tried to pass Babson's car in Washington st. His car hit the rear fender and turned over.

Babson lifted McHugh from his demolished roadster, police said, and waited with him until officers arrived. McHugh made no plea to the charges in court and Judge Donald E. Mayberry held him in $200 for hearing Dec. 1.

Racing Melrose Boys Fined $60

Two Melrose high school boys on their way to a foot race match at Boston University's Nickerson Field on Armistice Day became involved in an auto race along the way, police alleged in Newton court today. As a result the two paid fines totaling $30 each.

Officer James F. Goddard testified he chased Percy R. Cluff, Jr., 18, of Perkins st., and Lawrence M. Zurbach, 17, of Warwick rd., along Commonwealth ave., Newton, at 62 miles an hour—but could not catch them.

"The windshield on my motorcycle held me back," he said.

Later, he found the boys at Nickerson Field. They were charged with speding and with operating recklessly in a race.

Man's Head Bobs in Ditch, Shot for Duck

WARETOWN, N. J., Nov. 24 (AP)—Isaac Packard, 45, was digging a ditch in a cranberry bog yesterday, his head bobbing up and down with each shovelful. Along came Harry duPont, 30, shotgun over his arm, eyes alert for ducks.

State Police Sergt. Crawford said duPont fired nine shots, striking Packard in the face and shoulders. His condition was described as not serious.

43 Dead, Many Hurt In Turkish 'Quakes

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 23 (AP)—Destruction of 16 villages, the wrecking of many more and the levelling of more than 1000 buildings by a series of nine earth shocks were described today in delayed reports from stricken areas in eastern Turkey.

The casualty list was incomplete, due to shattered communications, but 43 persons were killed and great numbers seriously injured in Erzingan alone.

TRIO HELD AS STORE LOOTERS

A husband and wife, and the wife's sister, an alleged shoplifting trio who specialized in stealing only the finest of loot, according to police, were held in $300 in Quincy court today on charges of larceny, receiving stolen goods, and attempted bribery.

The cases of Mr. and Mrs. Pliny C. Lombardi of Washington st., West Newton, and Mrs. Fanny Casino of Florence st., Cambridge, Mrs. Lombardi's sister and the mother of nine children, were continued to Dec. 1 by Judge James A. Mulhall at request of police.

TRAILED BY POLICE

The three were prosecuted by Quincy police and state detectives who alleged they followed them on what was described as an all-day shoplifting tour climaxed, police said, when Mrs. Lombardi offered a bribe of $1000 to Lieut. John F. Dempsey of the state force to "forget it."

Police had the women searched by a matron and $1076 in bills was found in Mrs. Lombardi's stocking. Her husband and Mrs. Casino had about $300 each in cash on them.

After the bail had been set at $1000 on each of the three charges against each defendant—a total of $3000 each—the amount was provided almost immediately.

POLICE TOOK NOTES

Lieut. Dempsey and Sergt. Robert Ferrarri of the state police said they trailed the trio from store to store, writing down descriptions of the alleged stolen goods.

From shopping bags in the automobile used by the trio the police hauled out six turkeys, oranges, tea, sugar and a qauntity of clothing on which a total value of $136 was placed.

The arrests were made after the women had visited four stores in Quincy and had returned to the automobile, in which the man was sitting, laden with shopping bags bulging with food and clothing. The car was parked off Hancock st. in the Quincy business section.

Later the State police sent out teletype messages throughout the State giving descriptions of the three and inquiring if they were wanted elsewhere.

The largest haul was in Quincy, State police said. In Boston and Cambridge stores the alleged larcenies were not so great.

Carolyn Clare Suit on Career

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24 (AP)—The $250,000 breach of promise suit Carolyn Clare filed against Screen Director Sam Bischoff was not based on lost love, but her claim he promised to make her a cinema star.

Bischoff, in answering the suit, presented a double-barrelled defense. He contended he did not at any time hold out hope of a screen career for her in order to betray her, and that he did not entertain any love or affection for her and at no time told her he loved her. He stated that he did not consider her to be a talented actress.

Miss Clare's suit made no mention of promised marriage.

Attorney Milne Is Found Dead

James W. Milne, 55, Boston attorney with offices in Tremont st., downtown, was found dead today in a garage near the rear of his home in Brainerd rd., Allston.

According to police, the body was in the rear seat of the Milne automobile. Both the car and garage doors were shut.

The discovery was made, police said, by the victim's wife, Mrs. Christina Milne, and a friend who had gone to search when Milne failed to return home last night.

Safety of Galways Port Is Stressed

Mayor Tobin, in a cable message from Mayor Joseph Castello of Galway, Ireland, has been asked to call the attention of Americans to the safety advantages of the port of Galway for American ships.

"As you know," said Mayor Costello's message, "this port can be approached directly from the Atlantic and is free therefore from the dangers of mine-strewn channels. Consensus of expert opinion in the past always stressed strongly the commercial strategic position of Galway port in wartime and this position is now immensely strengthened by the neutrality of Eire."

Seek Party Details in Girl Death

More details of a drinking party which preceded the death of pretty Barbara Pelletier, 29-year-old Maine waitress, were sought by Quincy police today as they probed the mysterious accident which took her life.

At the same time, officers of the Massachusetts motor vehicle registry assisted Quincy police in an examination of an auto, believed involved in the accident.

With the seizure of the car, police said they were holding to a hit-run crash theory. Nevertheless, persons attending the party at which Miss Pelletier was present a few hours before she died were questioned.

The girl suffered a fractured skull, fractured right leg and was cut and bruised from head to foot, according to hospital officials. She was a native of Houlton, Me.

Accompanied by Mildred Cullen of Hancock st., with whom she had been sharing a room, Miss Pelletier went to a Hancock st. cafe early in the evening, Capt. George H. Fallon said. Later she left the cafe alone.

The boys who found her told police they returned and called her companion and then placed her in their car, intending to take her home. They had driven only a few feet, however, when she regained consciousness, they said. She insisted she could take care of herself and left the car.

A short time later, residents told police, they were startled by the screech of the brakes of an automobile, which stopped suddenly and then sped away.

THREATEN BOYCOTT OF DUTCH

LONDON, Nov. 24 (INS)—Great Britain may be forced to boycott Dutch goods if the Netherlands carries out its threat to prohibit shipments of foodstuffs to the United Kingdom, Whitehall circles predicted today.

This forecast was offered as Anglo-Dutch relations became strained as a result of the British decision to seize German exports a move which Holland considers a body-blow against her prosperity.

"The Dutch threat will hurt them more than it will the British because we will divert our purchases elsewhere," one Whitehall source commented.

Controversy between Great Britain and the Netherlands grew after the Netherlands minister B. von Edgar Michael Van Verduylen, made a formal demarche to the British foreign office, reserving all Dutch rights under international law in connection with the British plan.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 24 (INS)—The Belgian government today withheld the text of its note of protest against seizure of German exports which will be handed to the Anglo-French governments by Belgium's ambassadors to Paris and London today.

2 German Liners Slip To Sea to Be Raiders

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Reuters (British news agency) reported today from Lourenco Marques that the German liner Watussi, 9521 tons, had slipped out of that Portuguese East African harbor last night after having been there since war began.

(A Reuters dispatch from Swakopmund, Southwest Africa, earlier said the 16,662-ton German liner Windhuk had sailed from Lobito, Portuguese West Africa, Monday, apparently to become a maritime raider.)

Deaths of Ex-India Aide, Wife Probed

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Investigators failed today to discover any motive for the shotgun deaths of Sir William Reid, former acting governor of Assam Province, India, and Lady Reid.

The bodies were found yesterday near Sir William's rural home near Portsmouth, where the couple had lived almost wholly to themselves for 12 years. Both had died of shotgun wounds. They had been missing since going for a walk Tuesday. Sir William was 68 years old and Lady Reid 61.

Japs Confirm Red Trade Pact Plan

TOKYO, Nov. 24 (AP)—Reports of negotiations toward a Japanese-Soviet Russian commercial treaty, one of several phases of a rapproachment apparently under way, were confirmed today by Domei, Japanese news agency.

The agency reported that Shikao Matsushima, New Japanese minister to Sweden, had been instructed to stop at Moscow, en route to Stockholm, to assist the Japanese ambassador there, Shigenori Togo, in talks looking toward such a treaty.

British Banks Aid War-Time Importers

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—A powerful British banking group headed by N. M. Rothschild and Sons has been organized to help importers of United States goods who have been denied credit overseas because of the American neutrality law, it was disclosed today.

Assistance by the group, called the New Trading Company, will vary with the needs of individual importers, the Financial Times said.

Mme. Molotoff Loses Her Job

MOSCOW, Nov. 24 (AP)—Soviet Russia's only woman commissar, Paulina Zhemichuzhina, head of the fishing industry and wife of Premier - Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff, has been released from her job "to be transferred to another one," it was announced.

Many foreign observers said they thought the action looked like a demotion.

Concord Has 2d Lowest Light Rate

Concord residents will enjoy the second lowest electric light rate in the state starting Jan. 1, it was announced today. Reductions in the domestic rate will amount to $12,600 annually, it was announced by the local lighting board. Concord operates its own light plant, purchasing current from the Boston Edison Company.

Vandenberg Asks 'COD' Armament

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (INS)—Declaring a sound economy is the best national defense, Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, today proposed a pay-as-you-go armament program, and a "realistic" investigation of past defense outlays.

One of the leading candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, Vandenberg emphasized that he favors an adequate national defense, but at the same time stressed the necessity of a program planned in relation to the national income.

"A sound public credit is the greatest of all national defense factors," he said. "Therefore, unless extraordinary national defense expenditures are on a pay-as-you-go basis you have torn down more national defense than you have built up.

"Like any other hard-pressed citizen, I hate to contemplate any new taxes to be tossed to the ravenous appetite of this administration, but I firmly believe that extraordinary expenditures for the national defense should be paralelled by special ear-marked revenues to pay for them."

Beth Steel Restores Cut

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (INS)—E. G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, today announced that, effective next January 1, the 15 per cent reduction in employe pension payments instituted during the depression will be restored.

In addition, he said, further liberalization of the company's vacation plan will be given consideration.

Grace's announcement was included in a letter to all employes. He also cited that although the present steel price levels are about the same as in 1929, average hourly earnings of employes are more than 30 per cent above those of ten years ago.

"We have every reason to feel that it is a job well done," Grace said.

Gunfire at Sea Heard Off Cape

FALMOUTH, Nov. 24—With the European war several thousand miles from their doors, residents of Falmouth Heights today agreed that they had heard something that sound very much like bursts of gunfire at sea.

Albert N. Thomson, a World War flier, said that he had timed the "gunfire" at 8:15, 8:25 and 8:47 p. m. Scaning the sea through powerful binoculars, he discerned the running lights of a vessel about six miles off shore. Coast guardsmen, searching the area to check on the report, found nothing.

Good-Will Planes Reach Paramaribo

PARAMARIBO, Nov. 24 (AP)—Six United States army bombers arrived in this Netherlands Guiana city today from Natal, Brazil, homeward bound after a good will flight to Brazil.

The seventh plane, forced back to Natal because of motor trouble, took ff again and was expected to join the others here.

Nazis Link British Agent to Sabotage

BERLIN, Nov. 24 (AP)—Capt. Richard Henry Stevens, held as a British spy chieftain on charges of direct connection with an attempt on Adolf Hitler's life, was represented officially today also as a director of British pre-war sabotage against German, Italian and Japanese shipping.

Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, quoted Stevens, who has been identified by the Gestapo as chief of British intelligence for Western Europe, as confessing he used an emigrant German, Waldemar Poetzsch, in plots to wreck ships of the three totalitarian powers.

Stevens was declared to have told Gestapo questioners that the sabotage campaign was planned in a secret service office in London, on the ground floor of the "Broadway building."

An official statement charged that from November, 1937, to November, 1938, Poetzsch carried out acts of sabotage on "a number of ships which resulted partly in their destruction, including that of the crew."

FAILS TO LIST SHIPS

The statement did not list the ships in question, saying merely that "German, Italian and Japanese ships" were affected.

Moreover, the Voelkischer Beobachter specified three German ships, the 1110-ton naval oiler Norderney, the 2883-ton Hestia and the 651-ton Feronia, and one Italian ship, the 5639-ton Felce, as included among the sabotaged vessels.

In September, 1938, the statement said, Poetzsch was arrested in a "neutral country" at the insistence of German police but released when "British quarters" interfered. Last year 29, however, the man was sentenced by a Copenhagen municipal court "on a charge of espionage for England," the statement declared.

(In Copenhagen it was reliably reported that Poetzsch is serving out a sentence in a Danish prison on charges of espionage. He was sentenced to six months in jail June 30, but on appeal a higher court sentenced him to eight months with 75 days deductable.)

The statement said that German investigators were attracted in the sabotage cases by the fact that no English ship had been affected and declared that with the alleged admissions by Stevens it now had been proved that:

GERMAN EMIGRANT

"The principal perpetrator of this ship sabotage was a German emigrant, Poetzsch. His employer was the British Intelligence Service.

"The first ship of English origin in which perhaps a similar act was undertaken by order of the intelligence service is the Athenia."

Voelkischer Beobachter observed that in view of statements by Stevens the United States might wish to re-examine the Athenia disaster.

Dutch Officer Slain In Nazi Seizure of 2

THE HAGUE, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Amsterdam newspaper Het Volk said today that a Netherlands army intelligence officer, Lieut. Klop, was killed in the Venloo frontier incident of Nov. 9 in which German secret police seized two Britons as spies.

The Britons while here described themselves as engaged in undercover peace efforts, Netherlands officials declared.

Say Seized Britons Checking "Peace Offer"

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Authoritative British sources said today that the two Britons seized Nov. 9 by the German Gestapo on the German-Netherlands border were endeavoring to see if a German "peace offer was bonafide."

These sources said Capt. Richard Henry Stevens and Sigismund Payne Best were acting with the knowledge of the British government when they were "kidnaped."

The "peace proposals" came from "some German sources," a British spokesman said. Everything Stevens and Best learned "was transmitted to their own government and it was in the course of the endeavors to see if the peace offer was bonafide that they were kidnaped," he asserted.

Replying to German charges that the British inspired the Munich explosion Nov. 8 in which Adolf Hitler escaped death or injury by a few minutes, the British spokesman said the Gestapo must either have known the bomb was in the cellar long before it exploded or admit to "gross inefficiency."

LATE NEWS BRIEFS OF THE WAR

PARIS, Nov. 24 (INS)—Premier Edouard Daladier today conferred with leaders of the French army, navy, air and diplomatic service at the ministry of war. Attending were Army Commander-in-Chief Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, Navy Commander Admiral Francois Darlan, Air Service Commander Gen. Joseph Vuillemin, Auguste Champetier de Ribes, undersecretary of foreign affairs, and Robert Coulondre, former ambassador to Berlin.

KATTOWITZ, Germany, Nov. 24 (AP)—About 5000 Jewish women, children and infirm men must leave the Kattowitz (formerly Kattowice, Poland) and Reschen areas of German-occupied Poland for a Jewish reservation east of Lublin by Dec. 15, it was disclosed today.

MOSCOW, Nov. 24 (AP)—The presidium of the Supreme Soviet today awarded honors and medals to 7064 railwaymen for exemplary service. Among the recipients were leading workers of the commissariat of railways, inventors, engineers and technicians and 71 workers of the Moscow subway.

SINGAPORE, Nov. 24 (INS)—The Free Press reported from Bangkok today that 21 persons convicted of insurrection and attempting to overthrow the Siamese government have been sentenced to death. Twenty-five others received life sentences, and seven were acquitted, the publication stated.

Four More Performances For Wild Animal Circus

Four more performances of the Hamid-Morton-Clyde Beatty Wild Animal Circus are scheduled at Boston Garden, matinees this afternoon and Saturday with evening performances, of course, both dates.

Six Packard cars will be given away by the American Legion Convention Corps at the performances today and tomorrow, one each at the matinee shows and two at each evening performance.

Beatty and his circus continue to thrill the thousands attending the show Beatty has recently brought from Europe and Asia several new animals and these have been added to his collection

The Wallendas, despite their narrow escape from death Wednesday night, will continue as usual with their death-defying wire-walking act 60 feet above the ground with no net underneath.

One of the most attractive acts of the show is that provided by the Chisiffy horses. A newcomer to the circus world is dainty little Miss Edith Christy, a Houston, Tex., finishing school graduate of last year.

Sees Democrats Ruin Party by Third Term

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—It is a paradox of American politics that if Mr. Roosevelt should decide to break the two-term tradition imposed upon all their successors by Washington and Jefferson he could count with certainty only upon votes of that section which most would hate to vote for him even as it did so.

Probably nothing could more certainly raise again the sectional issue in this country than such a third-term candidacy.

Not only would such a candidacy, especially if successful, destroy the Democratic party, and perpetuate a New Deal Socialist party on its ruins, but it would leave the solid South a hopeless political minority in the years to come.

Mr. Roosevelt if nominated to be his successor—not for a mere third term, but for an indefinite term in office—probably would carry every Southern state but North Carolina, where an analysis of the Republican vote in recent elections indicates that the Tarheel state would wind up in the G. O. P. column.

The rest of the South Mr. Roosevelt would carry, not on his merits, not because the South detests the "third term" idea less, but solely on the issue of the Civil War and reconstruction.

Upon this prejudice alone could Mr. Roosevelt rely for the South's electoral vote.

Mr. Roosevelt has twice been elected President by enormous majorities, but except as he has carried the South, he has not been elected, in 1932 or 1936, by Democratic votes.

RISING TOLL OF 'MINED' SHIPS STIRS BRITAIN

splashes came from lightweight high explosive mines dropped on parachutes.

Naval authorities asserted the admiralty was profiting by its experience in combatting mines during the World War. They said it was aware of the reported new devices and of methods of coping with them.

One indicated method was through development of a new mine-sweeping technique, possibly with wooden minesweepers on vessels insulated against magnetic mines. Another was through intensified air and sea patrols against enemy minelayers.

Disclosure last night of two more sinkings raised the additions for yesterday, alone, to eight. One was the 315-ton British minesweeper Aragonite, which the admiralty said struck a mine Wednesday.

The other was the 974-ton London steamer Lowland, which, it was disclosed, sank in the North Sea with nine men missing and one dead. The cause of the sinking was not given.

A Netherlands tanker, the 5133-ton Sliedrecht, was added to the list of neutral victims of the war.

Five survivors of the 31-man crew reached the British Isles by a trawler which picked them up after seven and one-half days in an open boat. They said a submarine sank their craft.

Two vessels damaged in previous mishaps were beached today to keep them from sinking.

Last Hope Gone For Sing Sing Pair

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 24 (INS)—There was no Thanksgiving Day cheer in Sing Sing Prison's death house for Joseph Sacoda and Demetrius Gula. In tears they received the news that the court of appeals had refused them a new trial and doomed them to the electric chair.

They are the first prisoners ever sentenced to death in New York state on any charge other than murder. They were convicted of the kidnaping of Arthur Fried of White Plains, who was later slain and his body destroyed in an East Side furnace. Both are 28 years old. They will die early in January.

Federated Europe Proposed by Briton

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (INS)—An active campaign by a leading English Liberal for creation of a federated Europe, with Great Britain and France leading the way, was revealed today in letters received frmo London by Rep. Harold Knutson (R.) of Minnesota.

The proposal appeared to have the three-fold objective of ending the war, creating a lasting peace and preserving democracy in Europe.

Lord David Davies, a Liberal member of the English House of Lords, informed Knutson in a letter that he had already sounded out a European democratic nation on the proposal for a Federated Europe. He suggested that Great Britain and France lead the way.

In an earlier communication, ord Davies declared that peace terms ending the present war should be written with a view to preserving peace.

He suggested that the colonial powers, which are chiefly the United States, Great Britain, France and Holland, should pool their possessions. These possessions, under the plan, would be administered so as to give all nations an equal opportunity to access to raw materials. A battle for raw materials is believed by many to be at the base of the present war.

"I also was told on excellent authority in Europe in August that a confederation of European nations also is the objective of Chancellor Hitler of Germany," said Knutson, who was a congressional delegate to the interparliamentary union conference in Oslo.

Shipping Losses Now Total 151; No Sign of Letup

(By the Associated Press)

Shipping losses among neutral andbelligerent nations mounted to 151 today with no sign of a letup in the most disastrous period of sea combat since war broke Sept. 3.

Twenty-five vessels have been sent to the bottom since the fresh outbreak of submarine and mine activity began last Saturday. Eight sinkings were reported yesterday. The French navy claimed three German submarines had been sunk in four days in counter attack.

Ship tonnage so far destroyed in rival blockade campaigns rose to 572,633. At least 2033 persons have been killed or drowned in the sea warfare and 120 more are missing.

The latest losses raised Great Britain's tottal to 82 vessels. Germany has lost 15, France 9 and neutral nations 45.

Forty-four ships have been reported sunk so far this month. Sixty were destroyed in September and 47 in October.

RITES SET FOR JUDGE W. D. GRAY

Funeral services for Judge Wilford Drury Gray, 55, associate justice of the superior court will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in Woburn Baptist Church, followed by burial in Woodbrook Cemetery, Woburn.

Judge Gray suffered a cerebral hemmorrhage yesterday at the breakfast table as he was preparing to go to court and died late in the day at his home 125 Rutledge st., Belmont. He had presided at Middlesex County Superior Court, Wednesday.

A native of New Brunswick, Judge Gray moved to Woburn with his parents when he was seven. He attended the public schools and Woburn high school and attended M. I. T. for two years. He turned to the study of law, however, and was graduated from Boston University Law School in 1908.

He served as city solicitor of Woburn in 1915-16 and as mayor of Woburn in 1917 and 1918. He also had been clerk of committees for the Woburn city council and city collector. In 925 he was appointed to the Superior Court by Gov. Fuller.

REV. JOHN D. BUTLER

Rev. John D. Butler, S. J., 70, former professor at Holy Cross College, will be buried tomorrow following funeral services in the Jesuit Chapel, Weston College. Father Butler died last night at Holy Ghost Hospital, Cambridge.

Born in Boston, he was graduated from Boston College and entered the Jesuit Seminary at Woodstock, Md. He was ordained in 1903 and before going to Holy Cross had taught in Jersey City and New York. He was assigned to Immaculate Conception Church, South End, in 1915, remaining there until his death. A sister and two brothers survive.

1-Man Fire Force Lets Derry Sleep

DERRY, N. H., Nov. 24 (AP)—Night Patrolman Chester Manning is considerate as well as resourceful.

Hearing cries from a downtown building, he ran up the stairs and found a mattress on fire. He hurried across the street to the firehouse, took a hand extinguisher from the wall, ran back and extinguished the flames. He then returned the extinguisher to its rack without disturbing anybody.

"I didn't want to wake the whole town up by sounding the fire alarm," he explained, as he resumed patrolling his beat.

Pet Dog Loyal To Malden Man Even in Death

His master's death dimmed no spark of this litle dog's devotion . . .

For years, a familiar sight in Malden has been the bent, gnarled figure of 80-year-old Avides Kaljian, born in Armenia, but for 60 years a resident of Malden.

Always, by his side, was the dancing spitz dog that was his only companion . . .

For Kaljian, a pensioner of the old Boston Rubber Shoe Co. that had employed him all his life, lived alone in a two-room apartment in Highland ave.

Only his dog shared his quiet home . . .

Today, neighbors realized they had missed the old man. No more did they see him shuffling out in the forenoon for his daily walk. They called police.

Officers, peering in the window of Kaljian's home, saw his still figure crumpled on the floor. By his side, the little Spitz . . .

Patrolman John F. Hughes broke a window, went in—and the loyal dog went for him. Hughe's hand was torn by the dog's fangs, but he managed to put the animal in the next room.

Police said Kaljian apparently had died of natural causes. They sent a patrol wagon to take the little white dog to police headquarters, and there he sits now, whining . . . mournfully.

HENRY — An Unappreciative Audience

BARS WARNED ON CUT-RATE DRINKS

A warning of severe punishment for barkeepers who sell drinks at cut rates, three beers for a quarter, or who serve drinks and free lunch "on the house," went forth today from the Boston Licensing Board.

Hotels, night clubs and cafes were warned against using boys and girls under 18 as entertainers after 10 p. m.

During a conference with the licensing board, officials of the Boston Retail Liquor Dealers' Ass'n reported a growing tendency to serve drinks "on the house" and to permit some patrons to drink "on the cuff." The board held, however, that if a proprietor wished to extend credit he was within his rights.

Harvard Medical Aide Wins Academy Award

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 24 (AP)—The Theobald Smith Medal of the American Academy of Tropical Medicine was awarded tonight to Dr. Richard P. Strong of the Harvard University Medical School, Boston, Mass.

The medal, given in honor of a U. S. department of agriculture scientist who discovered the tick transmission of disease germs and viruses, was given Dr. Strong "for outstanding work in the study of tropical diseases."

By a coincidence it was presented by Dr. William B. Castle, also of Harvard University, who Tuesday was given the Walter Reed medal of the American Society of Tropical Medicine for his studies in tropical diseases. The medal is given in commemoration of the work of the late Dr. Walter Reed of the U. S. Army Medical Corps who proved that yellow fever is transmitted by mosquitoes.

The organizations for the study of tropical medicine met here in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association.

More Mothers Join Drive Against War

Scores of mothers, each carrying the fear in her heart that perhaps her son will die on a foreign battlefield, wrote to the Legion of Mothers today promising aid to keep this country out of war.

Typical of the appeals sent in was that of Mrs. Edina Nisula of 65 Snow st., Gardner. She wrote:

"I am a widow with a small income. I think the Legion of Mothers is one of the grandest ideas I ever read about. I didn't lose sight of the paper until I cut out the pledge.

"I have four sons, two married and two at home. Their ages range so that in a couple of years war would take them all.

"Three sons and one daughter are all I have in the world." And then poignantly—"I never had any brothers or sister. My parents and my husband are gone."

Another letter was received from three Jamaica Plain mothers, one of whom told of her mother worrying herself into an early grave after her brother died "over there."

N. H. WOMAN'S VIEWS

Evidence of the scope and appeal of the organization was seen when a letter was received from a Mrs J. C. Biedenkopp of Hooksett, N. H., a young bride. She writes:

"I just signed your pledge card and I want to be one of you. My husband is of military age and I don't want him to fight on foreign soil. I will do my best to get mothers to join. I hope every mother is with you 100 per cent."

The uselessness of a war involving America was scored in a letter written by Mrs. Lucy Palermo of Bennington st., Lawrence.

"I have two sons of military age," she writes, "one 24 and the other 19. I wouldn't want my boys to go across and fight.

"I know many boys who went across in 1917 and they came back disabled. What did life have in store for them then? What has it got in store for them now?

"I wouldn't want to see my boys or anybody else's boys in the same catastrophe. We all love America so let us be like Americans and keep out of foreign wars."

Meanwhile staunch, determined mothers who joined the organization shortly after it began, canvassed their neighborhood to bring other mothers into the fold.

ENLISTS 300 MOTHERS

One mother alone, Mrs. Albert Levis of 30 Bellevue st., Dorchester, in a little more than a week's activity has already enlisted 300 mothers.

Remember, the Legion is non political, non-social and non-sectarian. No dues are required. The Legion discourages membership of women who would join merely to further their own personal gains.

It's pledges are:

1—To oppose the sending of American troops to fight on foreign soil.

2 To suport a program of adequate national defense.

3—To combat all "isms" whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

All women, married and unmarried are eligible. All that is required is that they be American citizens. Please sign pledge cards and mail promptly to Box 228, Boston.

Ask Donations To Aid Crippled

Donations and bequests are needed more than ever by the Industrial School for Crippled Children in St. Botolph st., according to the 45th annual report of the institution issued by officers and trustees. The report says that in order to operate the school without loss it has been necessary to cut expenses.

The institution has trained about 1000 children from the first year of school through high school. About 75 per cent of its pupils are victims of infantile paralysis. More than 27,000 warm meals were cooked and served under a trained dietician during the year.

Average enrollment during the year was 135, average attendance 118. There were 27 new admissions.

Elliott Roosevelt Draws Ire of Labor

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 24—Elliott Roosevelt's radio blast against organized labor was expected to draw a return fire from John L. Lewis of the CIO and leaders of the American Federation of Labor today.

The President's son, in a nation wide radio talk, warned organized labor that it faced "a frightful beating" in the next Congress because the breach in its ranks had not been healed by compromise.

"There is a new threat in the air," he said, "in the minds of the people and in the words of men who frequently have battled in labor's behalf, that unless some semblance of peace is restored, labor is in for a frightful beating.

"What the lawmakers give, they sometimes take away. The country is out of patience with the surly, pleasunish attitude of two great organizations that have split all labor in half and now refuse to do anything about it.

"That John L. Lewis, Czar of the CIO," he continued, "has not been able to arrive at some compromise, or at some workable solution, seems to indicate to many that this gentleman is not as able or as competent as he is cracked up to be."

He referred to the four-year-old split between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations as the source of growing impatience on the part of the public and of the threatened alienation of "labor's staunchest friends in Washington, people like Senator Norris and Senator Wagner."

"If you look back over the history of industrial America for the last 15 years, you will find a phase of American life that is pockmarked with disorder and strikes . . . Look at Detroit today. Perhaps 150,000 men, who are automobile workers, are sitting in their homes—staring into space. This is Thanksgiving.

"I do not mean," he added, "that in this specific instance labor is wrong and capital is right.

"Capital and labor must agree. Capital can raise wages a certain amount and still make a profit. Labor can give ground on its desires to gain other points."

Declaring that workers are not arguing for a wage increase, young Roosevelt said the labor union wants complete control over production and the speed of production, as well as the exclusive hiring and firing privileges in the company operations.

"In other words, they want the right to slow down or speed up production at will and to tell the company—who are good men and who are not. They also want to force the company to deduct the cost of the union dues from employees' salaries. If the unions get these concessions, they would automatically make the company their collection agency and they would also control the output of this country."

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST FUR ESTABLISHMENT

FIRING SQUAD AT DAWN

by PAUL WHELTON

THROUGH all the devilish plot the spy, with true German patience and thoroughness, covered his trail cannily—except at one spot.

And that one weak link in the chain enabled the United States Secret Service, aided by New York police, to nip one of the most fiendish schemes for death ever concocted in a human brain.

Passenger and freight vessels out of New York scores of vessels—and unwary men and women and children travelers by sea—thousands of unwary men and women and children—were to become victims of the plot that was diabolical in its very certainty.

And the United States then was not at war with Germany, nor was there any thought that she would be at war with Germany.

In fact, at the time the plot had its birth the sinking of the Lusitania, on May 7, 1915, was weeks in the future.

On the Western Front, in the Champagne sector where the guns were hammering in some of the bitterest fighting of the war, a German lieutenant and some other officers were examining unexploded French and British shells that had fallen as duds behind the lines.

The superiority of the Allies' artillery was causing the Boche great distress, and the lieutenant pointed now to the shells and said bitterly

"It is in the materials that the shells are superior, and the United States is supplying the materials as well as shells."

He wore an iron cross, the lieutenant, won when he had led a detachment of Germans in a surprise raid on a French trench, and he bore the name of Robert Fay.

A native of Cologne, Fay had emigrated from Germany to America, in 1902 spending a few months on a farm in Manitoba, Canada, and then entering the United States, where he worked first in a Wisconsin factory and later, for several years, in the plant of the J. I. Case Machinery Co. in Chicago, manufacturers of agricultural impiements.

In Chicago he had taken extensive courses in steam and electrical engineering and had become versed in the English language.

For some reason he had returned to Germany in 1906 and he was still there when the war broke out. Called up from the reserves, the lieutenant was sent first into the Vosges, then transferred with his unit to the Champagne sector.

It was now mid-winter of 1914-15, and as he considered the Allied shells the dark mind of this German was conceiving a plan which, for utter fiendishness, was surpassed by no other during the entire war.

WITH his plan the lieutenant went to his superiors. Yes, they agreed, if the flow of munitions and materials from the United States to the Allies could be halted, the advantage would be with the Fatherland. To blow up these American munition plants—that would be a master stroke

But Lieut. Fay interrupted politely. It was not a bright idea, at all, he said, to think of blowing up a munitions plant. He knew America. Buildings in such plants were widely scattered. A single explosion would do but little damage to the whole. His idea was better; it was this . . .

And so, on April 23, 1915, nearly two full years before the United States entered the war, Robert Fay landed in New York from the liner Rotterdam.

He came, secretly of course, as an agent of the German Secret Service and he had with him $3500 in cash, supplied by Imperial Germany, and a code letter of introduction to Capt. Franz von Papen, now German ambassador to Turkey but then attache at the German embassy in Washington.

In December of 1915, Von Papen, scion of a wealthy Westphalian family, was to be recalled by Germany at the brusque request of President Woodrow Wilson.

Immediately after his arrival, Fay had a conference with the arch schemer in treachery, Von Papen, at the German Club in New York, and a short time later the plan was also submitted to Capt. Karl Boy-Ed, German naval attache at Washington, who also was to be recalled at Wilson's request.

It's very simplicity—the attaching of infernal machines to vessels, timed to be set off in mid-ocean by the ship's own rudder movements—made the scheme discovery proof, Fay told the German officials. The ships would be sunk. No munitions would reach the Allies, and no materials. As for passengers—well, what were they doing on the seas in wartime, anyway?

They told him to go ahead, and the first move then by Fay was to look up his brother-in-law, Walter Scholz, a civil engineer who had been in this country four years but at that time was working on the estate of a wealthy Connecticut man because of inability to secure a post in his own profession.

Scholz gave up his poor job and, with Fay, opened up "The Riverside Garage" in a small building in Main st., Weehawken, N. J., across the Hudson from uptown New York.

They were unique garage men in that they pleaded pressure of business when someone called to have a balky car corrected. Tools and car parts were scattered around the place and there was an old machine up on jacks. It never seemed to progress, and for good reason. They had bought the wreck, stripped it and placed the parts about as a blind.

When not interrupted by puzzled would-be customers, they were working from carefully drawn plans in the shop.

A PERSON at this time in the German spy's confidence would have had the plans laid out on a table and Fay would explain them, and would explain the workings of the bombs being built from the plans.

It was a hellish idea and there was no way in which it could toss.

The bomb would be attached to the rudder post of a ship loading at a New York pier. As the cargo going aboard the ship weighed her down, the bomb box would sink beneath the surface.

A rod would be attached from the rudder to the bomb mechanism and at every swing taken by the rudder, the rod would turn up, one inch, the first of a series of cogwheels.

After a certain number of revolutions of that wheel, it, in turn, gave one revolution to the next, and so on through the series, which would not be completed until the rudder had made thousands of motions and the vessel—passenger liner or straight freighter—was far at sea.

The last wheel was connected with the threaded cap around the upper end of a square bolt, and made this cap slowly unscrew, until at length the bolt dropped clear of it and yielded to the waiting pressure of the strong steel spring above.

"This pressure drove it downward and brought the sharp points at its lower end down on the caps of the two rifle cartridges fixed below it—like the blow of a rifle hammer. The detonation from the explosion of these cartridges would set off a small charge of impregnated chlorate of potash which, in turn, would fire the small charge of the more sluggish but stronger dynamite, and that in turn would explode the still more sluggish but tremendously more powerful trinitrotoluol—the deadly 'TNT.'"

Once the spring was free, the whole operation would take place in a flash, and instantly its deadly work would be accomplished.

For mechanical ingenuity and efficiency, coupled with horrific destructive powers, Fay's bomb had no equal. The explosion was calculated to occur at sea and to tear at least the entire tail of the ship loose, if not to destroy the ship itself—with mangled bodies and floating wreckage alone remaining to mark the passing.

LIEUT. ROBERT FAY
Seized as Spy in America

On this hideous dream, Fay worked for 180 days in and near New York, enlisting the cooperation of half a dozen other Germans, backed financially by Imperial Germany and encouraged by those arch-plotters in America, the lying von Papen and the arrogant Boy-Ed.

For the infernal machine some of the parts were standard and could be bought, without suspicion or possibility of tracing, in any hardware store.

Ignatz Schiering, a sheet-metal worker in West 42d st., Manhattan, made the tanks, although in fairness to Schiering he was told by Fay that the tanks were for a motorboat.

Bernard McMillan, doing business under the name of McMillan & Werner, Center st., Manhattan, made the special wheels and gears for the internal mechanism, from drawings supplied by Scholz.

MEANWHILE Fay and Scholz had bought a 28-foot motorboat and were taking "pleasure rides" about New York harbor. Nobody seems to have been suspicious about these two pleasure lovers putt-putting around at night, but the result of it all was that the pair discovered by experience that the best time to affix the bombs would be between 2 and 3 a. m., when watchman apparently had gone to slumber or into hiding.

It was disclosed later that Fay actually made some experiments on vessels at their piers, attaching to and then removing from their rudder posts dummy bombs in the form of old boxes, which could easily be discarded should they be discovered.

Easily the most difficult part of Fay's plan was the obtaining of explosives. He first decided to use chlorate of potash, a material so harmless in itself that it is used in tooth powder, but constituting an explosive of considerable power when mixed with some high carbon substance such as sulphur, sugar, kerosene or charcoal.

For this material, Fay went to Herbert Kienzle, a slightly-hipped dealer in clocks in Park pl., New York, who had been brooding about rumors that the United States was shipping dum-dum bullets to the Allies and who, in fact, had even written a pamphlet about this German propaganda rumor, indicating a firm belief in its authenticity.

Kienzle went to another German, one Carl L. Oppegaard, alias Paul Daeche, whose real name was Paul Siebs and who was ostensibly a dealer in copper but not doing very well with it.

Not averse to cheating each other a little were these Germans, and although Siebs had been asked to get only 200 pounds, on a commission for himself, he was in need of money and he ordered 336 pounds, reporting that this was the smallest quantity that could be bought.

After Eiebs received his commission, Fay and Scholz experimented with the potash, then decided it was not powerful enough. They sought now for dynamite and Fay recalled still another German, one Bronkhurst who was in charge of the grounds at a German sanatorium in Butler, N. J.

Sure enough, Bronkhurst used dynamite in blasting about the grounds, and he was only too glad to serve the Vaterland by supplying some. There was need now for trinitrotoluol, and again Fay and Scholz went to Kienzle.

Executing his usual forward passing, Keinzle queried another German, E. N. Brietung, employed by his uncle in the shipping business, and subsequently to furnish Fay with full lists of ships and shipping schedules for his diabolical scheme. Brietung went to Siebs—and they were right back where they had started with the potash.

Buying TNT was something entirely different from buying potash or dynamite—used commercially—because TNT was far too powerful an explosive for any but military use. And it was sold only in large quantities.

THUS far, Fay and Scholz had covered their tracks perfectly. There was not a suspicion that the devilish plan was being carried toward actuality in New York and New Jersey.

But in the attempt to get TNT, the chain inadvertently developed a weak link. Siebs knew he could not get it personally but he recalled that he had heard an office mate, Carl Wettig, manager of a small trading corporation subsidiary in New York, discussing the market price of trinitrotoluol with a customer some weeks before.

Siebs spoke to Wettig, who promised to do what he could. Wettig later apparently became a bit frightened, however, and mindful of his own skin he secretly tipped over the whole scheme, not to betray the others but to protect himself.

He slipped over to the French Chamber of Commerce in New York, told officials there what had been asked of him, said frankly he wished to get into no trouble and asked advice in buying the explosive through the police.

They put him in touch with New York police, and soon the bewildered Wettig was being questioned, not only by police but by Secret Service agents. Trinitrotoluol was not discussed lightly in those war days.

The result was that Wettig was furnished with a 25-pound keg of TNT—by the police, with the caution, of course, to say nothing about its source.

In the absence of Fay and Scholz from their room in Weehawken, Wettig left the TNT keg sitting on the bureau—a small keg of potential hell and damnation whose presence had the blissfully unaware landlady known of it, undoubtedly would have sent her scuttling in terror from the premises.

But Siebs seems to have had some difficulty in collecting his commission for this deal, because Fay and Scholz experimented with the TNT and could not explode the flakes, even with a hammer.

The nervous Wettig was called in again, and in his wake to the Weehawken house trailed a detective, joining two others who were on concealed watch near the house.

Wettig agreed to show the two conspirators how the little trick of making flake TNT explosive was done and the trio repaired to a little woods back of Fort Lee, N. J., playing out, in real life, a melodrama more fantastic than any ever acted by the old Biograph film players at Fort Lee.

In the top of a small tin can, over a fire built in a tree stump, Wettig melted some of the flakes, and before it cooled he imbedded in the mass a mercury cap.

When it cooled and hardened, the TNT would be a solid mass resembling resin in appearance.

However, before this blob of the explosive was ready for the test, one of the detectives, palpably not versed in Indian methods of tracking, stepped on a dry twig and the three men at the stump looked around in alarm.

THEY looked into the muzzles of guns, whipped out by the detectives who thus had been forced to show their hand. The date was Oct. 24, 1915, just six months and one day after Fay had landed in New York from the Rotterdam.

Trial of Fay and the other conspirators—or two trials, as Fay, Scholz and Siebs were tried fust, the others later—occurred in late April and early May of 1916.

The Imperial German Government, with that fibbing facility that is again becoming apparent today in a new war, denied blandly that Fay ever was in the German Army, let alone holding a commission, and asserted that official Germany knew nothing of his acts.

Fay himself admitted, however, that he had been sent here by the German Secret Service after serving at the front as an artillery officer.

American Ambassador Gerard, in Berlin, verified Fay's own statements as to his service record in the German Army—and thus the lie was thrown in Imperial Germany's teeth.

On May 10, 1916, Robert Fay was sentenced in federal court at New York to serve eight years in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.

His brother-in-law, Scholz, was sentenced to four years, while Siebs received a sentence of two years.

Displaying utter contempt for these principals, Judge Howe, the trial justice, also fined them —$2 each.

It was June 22 before Fay went to Atlanta, with all his appeals denied, including one made personally to President Wilson and which got short shrift.

Little more than two months later, on August 29, the nation was startled by the news that the German agent had escaped from the federal prison.

There are two versions of that escape. One is that Fay, becoming acquainted with another German prisoner, William Knobloch, who worked as an electrician at the penitentiary, was made Knobloch's assistant.

Following a violent electrical storm, the two men, with forged passes, this story runs, were let out the gate by an unsuspecting guard on a story that they had been ordered to repair electric cables short-circuited by the storm.

The other story is that Knobloch discovered that the prison telephone cable ran under the floor of the cell he and Fay occupied, that he tapped the cable, talked with the German embassy at Washington by means of an improvised transmitter and receiver, then contrived to get a duty pass admitting them to the outer grounds.

WHATEVER the truth, the men got out and although Knobloch was recaptured a short time later, near New York, Fay fled the country, undoubtedly with help.

Two years later, on Aug. 16, 1918, the arch plotter was recaptured in Spain and was returned to the United States to resume his sentence.

Released in September, 1922, he was summarily deported to Germany on the Hamburg-American liner Bayern, under strict orders not to come back.

As Robert Fay he remains on the American records, but there has always been doubt that this was his real name, a name certainly not German.

It was established that he came over on the Rotterdam under the name H. A. Kearling, but whether or not that is his actual name nobody in official circles here was able to discover.

WOMEN who fly airplanes are proving themselves as resourceful on the ground as they are in the sky.

Thursday, while Mrs. Roosevelt, in her comments on this page, was quoting Miss Cecile Hamilton and pointing out the lack of employment opportunities for feminine aviators, 35 outstanding women pilots were planning the establishment of a scholarship to train more girls in instrument and blind flying.

The movement has a dual purpose. It stresses woman's ability to handle modern aircraft proficiently. And it informs the country that our air-minded sisters are ready to relieve men pilots in every national emergency.

When one remembers the aerial achievements of Amelia Earhart, Ruth Nichols, Helen Richey, only woman to fly a commercial line, and many others, he cannot doubt these women's sincerity or question their determination eventually to attain their rightful place in the important aviation industry.

AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN and business organizations have disproved over and over again the repeated charges of "radicals" that it is they who foment and profit by war.

Nothing more human or logical has been uttered on this head than the opinion of Charles R. Hook, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in a recent address in Middleton, Ohio.

Business men, said Mr. Hook, did not foresee the economic collapse following the last war.

They, however, learned quickly enough the industrial ruin that follows in the wake of inflated "good times," and today "they have set the weight of their influence against another war."

Business men have learned that it is not toward Europe that we must look for humming mills and the disappearance of unemployment but toward those basic principles of INDIVIDUAL INITIATIVE and healthy, blood-tingling rivalries that have in the past brought us prosperity and industrial stability.

War would destroy business by regimenting it and leading it into anti-American Socialistic Fascism.

Clearly, our industrial greatness is grounded firmly in the soil of PEACE.

We should dig deeper into that soil and resolve now to have none of Europe's hideous ways that lead to personal slavery and industrial death.

In a business way, or in any other way, the United States has NEVER gained from ANY WAR it has fought.

OPTIMISM ABOUNDS in the records of Federal savings and loan associations in Massachusetts.

Ernest A. Hale, New England Savings League president, reports:

"The increase in home buying which started earlier in the year has received new impetus in recent weeks . . . Analysis of Massachusetts loans in October shows that 37 per cent were for new house construction."

Massachusetts has always been a home-owning State. It is conservatively estimated that 450,000 families have either built or purchased the dwellings in which they reside.

The late depression seriously affected home ownership, particularly in shoe manufacturing and textile communities.

But now, with industrial activity exceeding expectations, payrolls rapidly expanding and many factories operating on three-shift schedules, thousands need no longer forego the pleasure, security and independence of being their own landlords.

COTTON HIGHWAYS interest New Englanders, particularly the more than 100,000 New Englanders who work or want to work in textile mills.

If roads now being constructed in Houston, Tex., and other Southern cities prove practical, thousands of new jobs may be created in New Bedford, Fall River and other manufacturing centers.

The building operation is simple. Thick cotton fabric is laid upon levelled ground. Upon this is poured the usual bituminous asphalt surface. Then another sheet of cotton is imposed as binding material.

Such a highway is expected to cost less and last longer.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

WE LIFT the veil of the not far-distant future. In a little American home, father and mother and the children are gathered around the reading lamp. The hearth fire is burning brightly, the children are doing their lessons, mother is knitting, and father is deep in his easy chair, smoking his pipe and reading his newspaper.

Father was once a poor crap-shooter. Advancement was slow and he realized he must make a new start. So he again began at the bottom of the ladder as a humble racetrack tout. Those were hard years, but he was alert and diligent and it was a proud day when he came home and told the little woman that Mike McSorley, the great bookmaker, had cut him in on a couple of nice little deals and had promised to make a place for him in his organization.

EDWIN C. HILL
Tells Gambling Parable

THAT WAS the real beginning of his upward climb. He worked hard and success came as he got in on the ground floor in a sweet little Harlem numbers deal, took a flier in a mid-town auction bridge syndicate, and got a deep underground pipe-line into the Irish Sweepstakes.

It wasn't all roses and sunshine, even, in those years, with a lot of old blue-nose laws making trouble about gambling, but later, with many states legalizing race-track betting, these obstacles began to fall away and he was becoming a substantial interstate operator in a half dozen profitable fields. He had won through.

The children went to bed and father and mother were alone by the fire. If father had not been so deeply absorbed in the racing form, he would have seen that mother was troubled.

Finally, she put down her knitting. "Richard," she said, "I must talk to you about Junior. Several days ago I was sending one of his suits to the cleaners and some pieces of ticker-tape fell out of the pockets. I was troubled at first, but thought little of it, supposing the boy had just picked it up somewhere, without knowing what it was. But when I questioned him, he was evasive, and I had to go down town and do some investigating before I got the truth.

"Richard, we've got to face this. That boy is hanging around that low stock exchange. What is worse, he and that dreadful Perkins boy have been getting up a pool or something to buy a stock. Junior's high school principal has heard about it, but I don't think he knows Junior is implicated. I don't just know how far all this is gone, but I just had to tell you."

OUR PARABLE might describe Richard's horror and his swift and salutary action, but it has already served its purpose.

Take a bird's-eye view of these post-war years and it's as plain as a pike-staff that to the degree that we have high-balled the literal crap-shooters, race track gamblers and card sharks along a clear road ahead, we have thrown up the block signals against the stock exchange.

As we have removed, one after the other, restrictions against gambling, we have piled up mountains of restraints and regulations governing the sale or purchase of securities.

To boil it down, there never was a time in our country when the laws against "games of chance" were looser, in virtually all States, and never a time when the laws governing the security markets were tighter. It seems to be one of the many screwball drifts of our era.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 24 —Here we are in Georgia, where we celebrated Thanksgiving Day. Just for my own satisfaction I am going to put down some of the things for which I am grateful, and for which I will willingly be thankful on two days if necessary.

I am thankful that I live in a democracy and that it is in the United States of America. I am thankful we are not at war. I am thankful that more of our citizens are thinking about their government today and are realizing their obligations to that government.

I am thankful that I can think as I please, and write as I please and act as I please within certain limits which guard these same liberties for other citizens. I am thankful that in this country courage can still dominate fear. I am thankful for the answering smile of the passer-by, and the laughter of children in our streets.

EVEN HERE in Warm Springs, where many people are facing handicaps which must give them moments of stark terror when they are alone, they can still manage to meet the world with a smile and give one the feeling of a marching army with banners flying.

Do you remember my mentioning a manuscript written by a blind woman who learned to live alone? Now I have been asked to go to see her. The book had so much courage in it that even though I am half afraid of shattering an illusion, I think I will take a chance and go. We always picture to ourselves what kind of person it is who has written something we like, and are a little afraid we may not like the real person as well. Yet I may find a new friend, which is always a delightful experience.

There are two swimming pools here, one in which the patients take their exercise, the other in which they play. If ever you feel creeping over you a sense of impatience with the work you have to do, which may be somewhat monotonous and slow in showing results, just come down here and stand around the exercise pool for a while, then go out to see a light hearted game of ball after work.

If watching this does nothing more for you, it will make you feel you should never be sorry for yourself.

Whichever day you celebrate Thanksgiving, my wish for you is that you may have something to be thankful for, no matter how dark your clouds may be, and above all may hope and faith in the future always be with you.

McNUTT SIGHS FOR "GOOD ISSUE"

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Paul V. McNutt, former High Commissioner to the Philippines, was introduced to the members of the Dutch Treat Club by Publisher Roy Howard . . . McNutt made no reference to his Presidential aspirations. He discussed, instead, the campaign issues used by all successful politicians in the Philippines . . . "Frankly," he sighed, "I wish I had one as good."

ART: Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is interested in bringing the Ballet Russe to the screen . . . Bob Rubin is interested in the plan and discussed it with his associates . . . "'Metro Presents the Ballet Russe.' That sounds marvelous," he enthused. "Why can't we get Eleanor Powell to do it?"

ELEANOR POWELL

TRIUMPH: Hiram Sherman, now featured in "Very Warm for May," revealed to Philip Loeb, who worked with him in "Swing Out the News," how he was able to win the actors' pool almost every night . . . Before the performance each member of the cast would contribute 50 cents to the pool. Their guess as to the gross receipts was recorded after their first appearance on stage. After the show the results were tabulated—and Sherman, whose guess was closest, would collect . . . He was able to make such accurate predictions because his entrance scene was a travesty on "I Married an Angel." He'd be lowered, via a wire, from the top of the theater. The descent was slow—very slow—slow enough for Sherman to count the empty seats in the orchestra as well as the balcony . . . The rest was simple arithmetic.

TERROR: Louis Elsheminus, the venerable artist whose work received little attention until recently, didn't read his biography, "And He Sat Among the Ashes," until William Schack, the author, presented him with a copy. "I haven't read the book," Elshemius confessed to him, "because I can't afford to buy a copy."

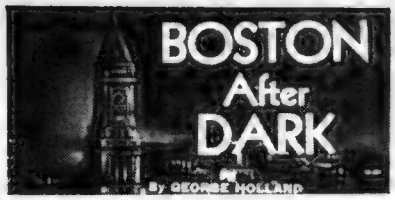
HOPE: A Warner Brothers' official here brings a vaudeville troupe to Sing Sing Prison every year to entertain the convicts . . . A well-known young lady came to his office and pleaded to be permitted to make the trip. "I can dance very well," she insisted. "We know you can, so that's all right," she was told. "We'll take you" . . . Because the show was too long, the young lady was informed that she couldn't go on . . . "But I must go on," she explained—and did go on, "because my father's up here. He's an old vaudevillian—and he's never seen me work."



EXTRA ! ! ! The Boston Bar Association is ready to pop with its third and biggest foray in the field of prosecution . . . It is big game the boys of the Bar are stalking this time, and unless the attempt comes a cropper, it is expected to give Ruben L. Lurie, the Bar Association's local Tom Dewey, sufficient stature to qualify him for a shot at a public prosecutor's job—perhaps even the attorney-generalship . . . But again the column can give no names . . . Not at this moment.

WHEN BOTH THE CONNOLLY and Dowd investigations were forecast in this space—months before charges were made in the first case and a full month before the first alleged bagman was nabbed in the Dowd case—it was impossible to identify the victims . . . The impending Bar Association chore, its third usurpation of District Attorney William J. Foley's duties, will find Lurie pitted against one of the most courageous and brilliant men in Massachusetts politics . . . The ramifications of the case are tremendous and far-reaching.

WHERE UNDISTINGUISHED low-salaried "third parties" and the names of middle-class subordinates and poor charwomen have featured the Dowd investigation, men who have held high office in the state—including a couple of governors — will make the headlines (inevitably) this time . . . Some of the most important names in the State's Democracy will be interwoven into the pattern of the Bar Association's most ambitious undertaking . . . The party will be riddled with the scattershot of ammunition saved for this barrage, and two separate probing commissions, both working under the authority of a Republican-dominated legislature, will be used to boost the Bar Association's case.

IT WAS STATED here a day or two ago that two factions in the Bar Association were at odds relative to the handling of this next case . . . One faction favored letting District Attorney Foley handle the investigation . . . But it will be Attorney Lurie who will do the pitching, with the Suffolk County district attorney backing up, and carrying the brunt of the battle after the first barrage is laid down . . . (This was the method of operation in both the Connolly and Dowd cases) . . . The self-appointed prosecutors realized that they have a tiger by the tail, and that the rip-and-tear this time may have a certain amount of mutuality . . . It is barely possible — that the next elected victim of the Bar Association may be named in this space tomorrow . . . If so, it will be with his permission . . . He knows what's afoot.

EXCLUSIVE: Pretty Eileen Curley, daughter of John J. Curley and niece of Former Governor James M. Curley, will become the bride of Bob Wholey, the jockey . . . Georgie "Man About Town" Clarke was on the right track in his Thursday column when he thought he caught a ray of lovelight in the couple's eyes when he encountered them in a nightclub . . .

'HELLZAPOPPIN' ' TO BE FILMED IN EAST

By Louella O. Parsons

Ole Olsen

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 24—Hollywood beware! New York is deadly serious about luring movie production back East. Today I learned that Nat Ross, formerly associated with the Laemmles, has raised a million dollar bankroll to produce "Hellzapoppin' " on Long Island with the entire cast of the New York stage hit, including Olsen and Johnson, doubling in the movie between shows.

All that remains to cinch the deal is a tie-up with a major production company to release the picture—and there are two of our biggest companies bidding for it. With "Hellzapoppin' " paving the way there's no doubt that several other current stage hits will follow suit and ask producers to film the movie versions of their shows right in New York. The rumor was strong before I left Hollywood that New York would offer many inducements to Hollywood producers to make pictures in the East next year—and they're getting the ball rolling sooner than expected.

SNAPSHOTS from all over collected at random: Bruce Cabot is giving Cobina Wright, Jr., a rush in Hollywood. They were at the Lamaze together; Virginia Cherrill (Mrs. Cary Grant No. 1) and her husband, the Earl of Jersey, turned over their palatial estate to 200 of the evacuated children of London, and have taken an apartment; Jerry Hopper and Marsha Hunt celebrated their first wedding anniversary yesterday at Santa Barbara, where they spent their honeymoon.

MY "BIOGRAPHER," Roz Russell, is up to her neck completely redecorating her home in Beverly Hills; after signing a six-months lease for a house at the beach Isa Miranda discovered the sea air made her ill and she's moving back to town; Lyle Talbot, who had been seen everywhere with Adonel Massey, showed up at the Club 17 with Jean Marshall; Katherine Aldridge with Al Wright, Jr., at the Beverly Derby.

LITTLE GLORIA JEAN and her mother leave for Dallas, Texas, where Gloria will sing with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra Sunday and Monday; Joan Fontaine, looking and feeling much better after gaining three extra pounds, with the bridegroom, Brian Aherne at the Katinka restaurant; Nena Quartaro, (I haven't heard her name in a long time) was at the House of Murphy, with Earl Chase, a New York artist.

DAILY STORY

Just Pals

I HAD ALWAYS considered Jack my best friend. We grew up together. Like a couple of kids we had sworn that no woman would ever come between us, and now after five years he was coming to Boston to live.

I read his letter over again and again:

"You old pirate, so you've gone and got married? I ought to shoot you for not letting me know sooner. Well, anyhow, wait till I get there. We'll do the town up red, wife or no wife."

How could I make him understand that I was happily married if he insisted on our old carefree antics? But I thrust all such thoughts aside.

AT NORTH STATION the crowd was tremendous. For the life of me I could not see Jack anywhere. "Bill, you're a sight for sore eyes!" The voice was behind me and I turned to see Jack smiling at me.

I tried to get him to come home with me to meet Blanche, but he insisted that he wanted to go right out to his hotel and unpack. So it was settled that I was to meet him later.

"And Bill," he said, "there will be a couple of girls waiting. Don't be late."

"But Jack," I tried to protest, "you know how it is."

"Know nothing," he laughed, "these two cuties will knock your eyes out; friend of mine gave me the telephone number and he knows how to pick them."

That night at home Blanche must have noticed how uneasy I was. I finally explained that I was going up to see Jack and that I probably wouldn't be in till quite late.

"Why that's all right, Bill," she said. "Tonight is the night of the Bridge Club's meeting and I'm supposed to be there. Myrtle will pick me up."

"THE GIRLS ought to be here any minute," said Jack when I picked him up.

We were only talking a few minutes when Jack said, "Here they are now."

It took me several minutes to understand what my eyes were trying to tell me. There at the door of the car was my wife with Myrtle!

Jack must have comprehended the situation because he pushed Blanche away from the car and probably saved me from the electric chair.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

SECRET SORROWS—never a mail but one or more comes to my desk. Somebody's guarded tragedy bared—for brief relief—on paper. A broken love bond. A gnawing remorse. A thwarted career. Bitterness of betrayal. Agony of loss by death. Or—hardest of all the bear—the wretchedness of a life that never had anything to lose. Hoarded heartache, and with it the invariable picture of crippled character.

SECRET sorrows—once I pitied them. Once, indeed, I cultivated them myself. Broken dreams—betrayals—a grave I could never forget—these things had come to me also. And I, too, hid them in my heart, not merely because I had been taught that it was "good taste" to hide such experiences, but really because I thought it was impossible to share them.

How could other people possibly understand my suffering? Of course, they had had sorrows. But not such devastating, demoralizing sorrows. They might suffer, within their small limitations, but MY sufferings were DIFFERENT. MY sorrow was peculiar and exclusive beyond the common comprehension.

Naturally, I didn't state the matter in these words, didn't even admit such notions to myself. To the contrary, I tried to be gallant about the "bearing of my cross" . . . and more generous to those who were bearing lesser ones. And I truly believe that I was making a good job of being a Broken Heart.

But of course I wasn't! I was making a wretched mess of it. I wasn't brave . . . I was disgustingly Snooty! I wasn't generous . . . I was outrageously Selfish!

In the first place, why should I allow my experiences to "break my heart"? Those experiences had been painful, but it was a normal and natural pain. It was the pain of growth. It was inevitable, in the development of any healthy life that dared to run risks and make experiments . . . dared to reach out toward Wisdom and Beauty. Why should I make a tragedy of that natural process?

Worse yet, why should I make a PERSONAL TRAGEDY of it? Act as if I were Exhibit A amongst the world's martyrs? How egotistical to think that my experience differed from the mass experience . . . that my suffering was more poignant than the suffering of millions of other human beings! It wasn't!

THEN WHY was I making all this fuss? Why was I cultivating a Secret Sorrow? For two reasons—IT GRATIFIED MY EGOTISM, AND IT ALIBIED MY LAZINESS.

S'Nows Who's Who In Lexington?

It should prove an easy matter in Lexington this winter to judge a neighbor's importance and political leanings.

The board of selectmen announced today that snow removal will be curtailed to the extent that sidewalks on some streets will be plowed on one side only and others will be toally disregarded.

BLAME MAYOR IN ROW OVER HOSPITAL

PEABODY, Nov. 24—Trustees of J. B. Thomas Hospital were expected to issue a statement blaming Mayor Joseph O'Keefe for the proposed closing of the municipally-owned institution today, and then resign.

The Mayor, in a letter addressed to the citizens of Peabody, declared:

"I wish to inform everyone who is in any way connected with the hospital, both in business or otherwise, that I refuse to sign any warrants for the payment of bills or any other commitments relative to the hospital."

The feud between the mayor and the trustees reached a high point when the trustees elected James F. Ingraham, one of their number, as superintendent of the hospital. O'Keefe has sought the job for his brother, Frank, a pharmacist.

"For me to allow your money to be spent by persons who are under the control of certain political influences," said O'Keefe's letter to the citizens, "would be a gross betrayal of the confidence that you, the people, have placed in me."

Love And Marriage

Sacrifices Her Good Times

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The young man I'm engaged to is rather good looking and all the girls like him. He's the kind who doesn't believe in dancing and shows and I sacrifice going to them because of him. You see I love him very much. When we first became engaged he was very sweet and considerate, but now he shows his love only when the moon and stars are shining, when we're in a romantic setting.

My sister says that I shouldn't sacrifice all my good times for him; therefore, he doesn't like her. I do give in to all his moods, but it hurts me because he never will give in to anything I say. I'm not really happy in my heart, but I try to appear happy outwardly.

IN DOUBT.

When you have to do a great deal of giving in BEFORE marriage, it's more than probable you'll have to do so even more afterwards. A young man who doesn't believe in shows, dancing or other innocent amusements strikes me as a doubtful life partner for a girl who does like and approve of these things.

Besides, my dear, there are many long periods of time in married life when the moon and stars aren't shining, and there is no romantic setting. Comradeship, good sportsmanship and mutual love and respect are the things that keep people happy together. An engaged girl should be radiantly happy all the time and not have to pretend that she is when she really isn't.

ADVICE ON GOOD MANNERS -:- 'Thank You' Note to Teacher

By MRS. BEECKMAN

It is not too early to teach children to write a thank-you letter when they are so tiny that you must hold their little hands to help them make their "mark." In no better way can the gracious virtue of appreciation be made a part of a child's inner self.

Nothing is more graceless than a child or a grown-up who eagerly accepts all courtesies and lazily shirks the task of acknowledging them. For an acceptance of a gift implies the acceptance of an obligation.

The next time your child receives a gift from one whose kind heart remembers him or her, see that the thank-you is written, and as soon as possible. It's rewarding, delightfully rewarding, to see how much this gracious gesture will soon please your child, make him proud of his mannerliness. And the little thank-you expression will deeply touch the kindly giver-of-the-gift.

You Can Be Beautiful

Custom-Made Cosmetics

By ARLINE GOULD

A GIFT of beauty can be an extremely personal one . . . if you have some custom-made cosmetics blended for the recipient. We'd hesitate to guess the number of formulas on file in one Boston shop which specialized in this sort of thing.

As a Christmas special, they've an innovation. You may send the lucky recipient a certificate which entitles her to a glamorously done-up ensemble; or ask her to drop by sometime soon, because this shop is in the center of the shopping district.

She'll be thrilled by the copper and emerald wrappings of this luxurious gift. And right now they are offering a box of individually blended powder rouge and a harmonizing lipstick for $3.

This powder rouge is a one-in-a-million kind. It's sifted incredibly fine, silken and light-textured. And goes on more perfectly than any cake rouge possibly could. It comes in a dainty sifter-fitted compact, and refills may be blended again and again for the slight charge of 75 cents.

She will find this custom-blended powder rouge quite an innovation. Like the powder, it is blended to highlight natural skin tones.

To learn about this unusual Christmas special in custom-made cosmetics, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NANETTE FABARES of the movies curves her lips into brilliant lines by means of a brush, just dipped into the palette of her lipstick! Arline Gould tells you of this new gift.

Salmon Stuffed Green Pepper Salad Dainty

By MARTHA LEE

FALL IS hospitality season—time for friendly informal luncheons shared by a few close friends, for cozy evening gatherings around the crackling fire and for the meetings of the afternoon bridge club.

A salmon stuffed green pepper salad served in generous slices on a bed of crisp lettuce and accompanied by piping hot potato chips is an excellent solution to the problem of what to serve for such entertaining. This salad, with its piquant flavor, is tempting enough for the lightest appetites and hearty enough, too, for the hungriest members of the party. It is prepared well in advance and is a real economy "find."

SALMON STUFFED GREEN PEPPER SALAD

1 lb. canned salmon
2 tsp. gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup mayonnaise dressing
1 cup celery (chopped)
6 green peppers

Flake the salmon. Dissolve the gelatine in the cold water and melt in double boiler. Add lemon juice and mayonnaise dressing. Stir in flaked salmon. Cut a small slice from the stem end of the green peppers and remove the seeds. Fill peppers with salmon filling and chill. Serve sliced on beds of crisp lettuce.

Rich, colorful flakes of salmon are ready to serve in scores of quick dishes just as they come from the can. They are high in food value, too, furnishing the menu with protein, calcium, phosphorus, iodine and vitamins A, D and G. The high food value, low cost and ease with which salmon is adapted for use in all types of menus makes this seafood a top ranking favorite with American homemakers.

SALMON RICE BALLS IN MUSHROOM SAUCE

1 lb. canned salmon
1 cup cooked rice
2 eggs (beaten)
1 tbsp. onion, minced
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup bread crumbs
1 can mushroom soup
2 tbsp. green pepper, chopped

Combine flaked salmon, rice, eggs, onion, salt and bread crumbs. Blend well and form into small balls. Add one half can water and the green pepper to mushroom soup. Place sauce in shallow baking dish and add drop salmon balls into sauce. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 30 minutes. Serves six.

Sinus Operations Cure for Blindness

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 24 (AP)—Sinus operations, greatly feared by many sufferers from sinus trouble, are curing many cases of blindness.

The dramatic results of draining the sinuses far back in the head occur when there has been interference between them and the optic nerve due to infection, Dr. James B. Costen of St. Louis, Mo., told members of the Southern Medical Association at one of its closing sessions today.

In a series of 13 cases studied, both sudden blindness and progressive blindness were found, with some patients reporting spots before their eyes, blurring, bleeding from the nose, tonsil infections, and headaches.

IMPROVEMENT NOTED

Drainage or flushing of the remote sinuses in the middle of the head brought about complete or partial improvement in 10 of the 13 cases, Dr. Costen declared, the operations relieving both pressure on the optic nerve and infection of the sinuses.

Destruction of the optic nerve occure very quickly in many interior sinus infections, Dr. Costen added, and in cases where the eye is involved the sinuses should be drained and tonsils and bad teeth removed promptly.

In another report Dr. T. W. Moore of Huntington, W. Va., declared that proper diet is probably the most important factor in preventing cataracts, or cloudiness of the eyes.

UNBALANCED DIET

"I have been astounded at how many patients with eye troubles, particularly incipient cataracts, are living on a poorly balanced diet which favors the growth of the disease," he declared.

When a proper balanced diet was prescribed "the cataracts have progressed much more slowly and in some cases have been arrested entirely," Dr. Moore declared.

Maritime Board Plans 'Open Tests'

The United States Maritime Commission has announced an open competitive examination for deck and engineer cadets in the American merchant marine. Unmarried men, between 18 and 25, of good moral character and education, who can meet the physical requirements, are eligible.

2 HOLDUP GANGS ARE HUNTED

Two separate gangs of gunmen, one operating in the South End and the second in the Back Bay and Roxbury, were sought by detectives today after an hour-long "crime wave" of five holdups.

Joseph Kennedy of Corey street, West Roxbury, who put up a fight with a bandit when held up on Forsythe street, Back Bay, wrested the gun from the gunman's hands. It turned out to be a sawed off air rifle.

John L. Elin, 56-year-old variety store proprietor of Marcella st., Roxbury, refused to go into a back room under the prodding of two men with guns and finally scared them off.

But a Negro who held up Francis Stevenson, 27, of Adams st., Dorchester, a cigarette salesman, got $200 the latter had collected from vending machines. He stepped into Stevenson's car on Columbus ave., at Dartmouth st., and ordered him to drive on.

At Whittier and Hampshire sts., Roxbury, the Negro took the money, jumped out and darted into an alley.

Two gunmen stole $10 from Sarah Lipson, Hyde Park ave variety store owner, in the first reported holdup, and a gunman robbed Charles Alger of Woburn st., Reading, of $40 as he stepped into his machine on Huntington ave.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

George wrote that they "may be wed by the time 'Boots and Saddles' shrills again at 'Gansett" . . . But it will be sooner than that (and get out the assignment book for the cameramen, boys) . . . The marriage will take place tomorrow, in Roxbury . . . It will be a quiet ceremony . . . Mrs. Sally Curley White, wife of Former City Censor Stanton White, and Eileen's sister, will be the matron of honor . . . Georgie Seabo, Wholey's pal of the jockey-room, will be best man

EXCLUSIVE. Artie Shaw is headin' south—south of the border down Mexico way . . . Betty Grable was pining for her devoted swain when the "Du Barry Was a Lady" troupe entertained a pack-jammed house at the Cocoanut Grove in today's youngest hours . . . Shaw's moodiness and his decision to quit the orchestra business at the height of a sensational career is the bombshell of the year in the music trade . . . Last summer, he told the writer that he yearned for a place in the production end of radio . . . After a rest, it is this reporter's prediction he will get such a production job—either in radio, the theater or in Hollywood . . . Shaw really has something as a musician . . . It may even be a spot of genius.

TIP: In "Boston After Dark" Sunday your reporter is prepared to divulge a secret which official Washington has shush-shushed . . . The darn yarn has international complications, and we would probably be smart to forget the whole thing . . . It might even be the basis of "an incident" . . . Other features in Sunday's paper: Austen Lake's "Doped to Win" . . . Joe Cashman and Dave Glueck covering the Harvard-Yale game . . . Johnny Gilooly's story of the Boston College-Kansas State game. (Adv.)

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: They're only allegations at present, but if stories are true that the Dowd bagmen collected $200 from each of a number of $18 a week scrub-women, then what little sympathy this column may have exercised against the job-sellers (on the theory that every other toe in the city is enough to do the booting when a man is down) is gone . . . The charges alone made us wish to switch to the red ribbon on the typewriter.

THE ELMER WARDS will have their annual after-the-game buffet at their Chestnut Hill home tomorrow. And now is the time for those planning to celebrate at a night club to make their bids for tables . . . The Mayfair is serving a four-star show—Dorothy Stone, Charles Collins, Gracie Barrie and Eunice Healey—and a seven-course dinner for a $5 minimum . . . If the dinner is as good as the show, the spot is offering a bargain . . . Incidentally, Miss Healey will be squired to the H-Y game by Walter Finn, handsome son and associate of Alex Finn, the Mayfair's proprietor . . . With Betty Grable in town, perhaps a mention that Eunice and Artie Shaw admired each other greatly, is unseemly as an item . . . Betty must know, however, that the whole thing was strictly professional . . . But the Benny Goodman-Eunice Healey romance was supposed to be the real thing . . . Whatever happened to that—if anything?

Silence Was Golden in Those Days

If there's no preaching—you get part of yourm oney back.

This, in effect, was the agreement on church dues voted by the Congregational Center Meeting House in Charlton, back in 1803, according to the WPA Historical Records Survey.

The society voted that all persons, not proprietors, who had seats should be paid by the treasurer "one cent and nine mills on the dollar for the sum paid for the year for each Sunday that we are deficient in preaching."

WOMEN OVER 40 NO LONGER FEAR WEAK BLOOD

due to periodic loss of iron, and change of life. No fear of jumpy nerves from lack of Vitamin B

Month after month for more than twenty-five years you have lost millions of iron-laden red blood corpuscles. As a result your iron reserve may be very low, and you suffer from low vitality, tiredness, coldness, pale skin.

For a few cents a day you can now add a large amount of iron to your daily diet and also get an abundant supply of Vitamin B, the important vitamin for the nerves, stomach, bowels, and glands. Just a few spoonfuls of ENRICH in a little milk or water three times a day will give you more good iron for your blood every day than a bushel of spinach or a barrel of carrots. And more Vitamin B than the finest of yeast cakes. Yet ENRICH tastes wonderful.

Don't wait and suffer mental agony as well as physical distress. We positively hand back your money unless the first bottle of ENRICH helps you feel better, look better, eat better, and sleep better. Thousands of women 40 years and over, have rich red blood and strong nerves, since obtaining the iron and Vitamin B which their bodies craved. Start taking ENRICH at once and begin to get back your pep and have color in your cheeks much persuasion he consented to see Dowd.

SAYS DOWD COUNTED BRIBE

While the grand jury continued to hear evidence, police made six raids on places where Dowd was reported to have been seen. Among the places visited was a Hyannis man's establishment where Dowd was reported to have been last night. The Hyannis man, a former bootlegger and now part owner of several race hoorses, was questioned.

Detectives James McDevitt, Joseph Desmond, William Crowley and Stanley Slack made the Hyannis visit while other detectives were searching in a half dozen other places.

It was reported today that Dowd would surrender if he could be sure of being bailed.

It was learned that a professional bonding company had refused to put up the bail when Dowd's friends said he would give himself up, and that several of his close associates had refused to contribute to the large bonds it is understood will be asked.

William J. Armstrong, who confessed to his part in the job-selling conspiracy, is held in $25,000. It is believed unlikely that bail for Dowd, named as the principal in the plot, would be fixed at a lesser sum.

SAID TO BE HERE

It is reported also that Dowd has failed in his efforts to get counsel. Atty. Francis Juggins, who acted for him until his resignation, is no longer his attorney.

Names of four women who say they paid for their courthouse jobs as scrubwomen were learned today after Atty. George E. McGunigle, special assistant district attorney, had questioned them. Others are being questioned.

The four who say they paid are Mrs. Margaret Curren, East Concord st., South End, $200; Marguerite Berry, St. Germaine st., Back Bay, $200; Vera Salway, Aukland st., Dorchester, $150; Matilda R. Smith Silva st., Dorchester, $150.

At the conclusion of the raids, all of which were unsuccessful, police expressed the belief that their quarry was in Boston. They would not divulge the basis for this belief.

Included in the raids were two cafes in the vicinity of Dudley st., Roxbury; a residence in the Roxbury Crossing area, the Summer estate in Falmouth of a prominent Boston real estate and sports promoter and two cottages at Silver Beach, West Falmouth.

The raiders were Lieut. Edward J. Twohig, Inspectors Joseph J. McBrine and Patrick McLaughlin of the Bureau of Criminal Identification, and Sergeant Morris Sullivan and Patrolman Martin Conroy of the Suffolk district attorney's office.

Friends and political associates of Dowd also expressed the belief that Dowd, who disappeared with his wife from Milton Monday, is within 50 miles of Boston.

Dowd was reported last seen in Milton as he and Mrs. Dowd got into a sedan outside the home of a relative and were driven away by a close friend. Detectives were said to have obtained the registration number of the sedan and to have questioned the driver.

OWN CAR TAKEN

Dowd's own gift automobile was found at the Milton address and was taken to the police garage at the Warren ave. station.

Additional witnesses were called before the grand jury investigating the Dowd case. Dist. Atty. William J. Foley was expected to make a statement on the case. At least four more indictments are looked for.

Suits were to be entered today against Dowd's $60,000 bond by county employes who allege that they paid him for their jobs. Most of those suing will seek to recover the amounts they say they paid Dowd, in the belief that their jobs will be lost as a result of the inquiry.

More "supervising ladies," as Dowd classified the scrubwomen who worked under him, were to appear for questioning by Foley's aides today and then were to go before the grand jury.

They were supposed to tell how they paid for their jobs with cash that is alleged to have found its way into Dowd's pockets.

Also scheduled to appear before the grand jury were representatives of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies, the latter with records of wires sent and received by Dowd, and jail employes David Looney, W. F. Murphy, Joseph McSweeney, Edward Handweirk, Charles J. O'Mata and Bernard Hurley.

Scrubwomen, earning $18 weekly each, were said to have paid $200 each to Dowd to hold their jobs, and their information jumped Dowd's alleged income from the same of county jobs to $5200.

A story that a prominent West End politician was forced to pay $1000 in cash to Dowd before he got a job in the sheriff's office also was being studied.

Dowd is reported to have sent telegrams to various parts of the country while still domiciled in the county-owned residence and using the jail. These wires, in the belief of the district attorney's investigators, may help in locating him now.

What investigators found in the vaults of two leading banks in the downtown district which they visited was not disclosed. One Dowd safety deposit box is reported to have yielded only papers of no particular value to the investigation.

Dowd today stood indicted on 48 counts. The total involved in the charges against Dowd to date is $28,100.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

HARVARD AND YALE and a full dinner pail—will certainly be the chief topic of discussion the next couple of days . . .

Back in the 1860's the war between the Blue and the Gray starved the nation and even broke up families . . . pitting brother against brother and cousin against cousin . . . But tomorrow's gridiron war between the Blue and the Crimson has just the opposite effect . . .

So many dinners, luncheons and cocktail parties have been planned that everyone will be stuffed with food and, though some families are divided in their sympathies, the game gives them an opportunity to get together on a common ground of good natured rivalry . . .

When Mary Markle Bannard, daughter of an old Yale family, became Mrs. Wallace Pierce, she married into an old dyed-in-the-wool (Crimson dye of course) Harvard family . . . but though her husband and fatherin-law cheer for Harvard and Markie's sympathies are pretty much with Yale where her younger brother is a junior, they all go to the game together and we think Yale gets the best of it! . . . because the senior Mr. Pierce likes to sit on the top row and in order to do so has to be in the Yale section! . . .

No matter what the outcome they'll all have a great time playing the game all over again at the cocktail party Markie and Wallie are giving afterwards . . . Their guests will include Markie's brother, Billie Bannard of Yale, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Proctor, 3d, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rothwell, 2d, Mr. and Mrs. B. Devereux Barker, Jr., Mary Hastings and Charlie Curran, Polly Cotter and Jim Donovan, Barbara Stewart, John Hollis, Bob Maguire, Don Fitzpatrick and others . . .

Party Tonight at Mark Hopkins Home

TOASTS WILL BE PROPOSED for the success of both teams tonight at the annual get together of friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hopkins of Dover . . . for though the host is a Crimson '29er, and the guests will be predominantly Harvardians and their ladies, there will be several Eli rooters in the gang . . .

The Hopkinses give a party every year before either the Yale or Princeton game and tonight's affair is a buffet supper at which the guests will include their Dover neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. James Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Francis, Bancroft Davis and his brother Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Baker of Millis, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyeth of Brookline, Betty Heckscher of New York, sister of the host, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rogers, brother and sister-in-law of the hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Whitehouse and Mr. and Mrs. John Kimball of Portland . . .

Many of this same crowd will continue the week-end festivities at the big party Nat Saltonstall is giving Sunday at his country place in Medfield . . .

A BUSY WEEK-END is in store for Mary Hastings, post-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hastings, who will attend the Harvard-Yale and many parties before and after.

Aristos Dance Next Week

Annual Thanksgiving-eve dance . . . for the benefit of the Aristos Club's scholarship fund . . . will take place next Wednesday night at the Hotel Sheraton.

Sharing chairman honors for the gala event are Elizabeth Corr, Dorchester; Kathryn Doherty, West Somerville, and Mrs. Edward Murray, Hyde Park.

Also working for the success of the party are Frances Carey, Gertrude Brown, Mary Scannell, Frances O'Donnell, Marion McDermott, Kathryn Crane, Bertha McGinty, Sally O'Connell, Mary Shea, Gertrude McManus, Mary Carmody, Winifred Walsh, Elizabeth Crane, Helen Barry, Katherine Lee and Alice Landry.

GOVERNOR HEADS SPONSORS FOR DINNER

Governor and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall head the list of sponsors for the dinner which the Massachusetts branch of Bureau for Medical Aid to China will hold at the Somerset Hotel, Dec. 11.

Other prominent Bostonians lending their support to this affair are Mrs. George Cheever Shattuck, Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes, William Cardinal O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Karl T. Compton, Miss Ada Comstock, Mr. and Mrs. William Emerson, W. Cameron Forbes and others.

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

Tested and Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau — Conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE

HOW CAN RESTLESS SLEEP BE OVERCOME? | WHAT IS DIET FOR TUBERCULAR PERSON?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY
Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Questions concerning foods, sanitation and health will be answered only if a stamped, addressed envelope accompanies your request. No exceptions can be made to this rule. Prescriptional advice cannot be given, nor can food or drug samples be analyzed. Address Dr. Walter H. Eddy, 57th st. at Eighth ave., New York city.

Restful Sleep Is Imperative for Health

My son grits his teeth very much in his sleep. Is there anything I can do to have him overcome this? A. L. L.

This phenomenon is frequently associated with disturbed digestion or some other type of sleep disturbance, such as worms. If you suspect the latter cause, have your physician make an examination of the child's feces. The condition should start you seeking the irritation to the nervous system that is producing this effect.

We still know far too little of the factors that influence restlessness in children at night, but your goal for this child is quiet, restful sleep, and the gritting of teeth is proof positive that something is defeating this objective, something that is robbing him of the type of rest he should have. Check his physical condition, his activities before retiring and his food.

Adapt the Treatment to the Patient's Needs

What foods do you think should make up the diet of a tubercular person? R. R. N.

The dietetic treatment for tuberculosis depends to a significant degree on the condition of the patient and the symptoms manifested at the time. The attending physician's advice in these matters should guide. In general, however, it is recognized that sufficient food should be supplied to keep tissues nourished and to help the body fight the attacking germs. In general, the use of the so-called protective foods, (dairy products, fruits, and vegetables) is stressed, for they are rich sources of vitamins as well as good tissue builders. The digestive system must be kept in good order.

Look to Your Diet

Will you be good enough to explain low blood pressure? I find printed material on high blood pressure, but only the most casual treatment of the subject of low blood pressure. L. C. M.

One of the most frequent causes of low blood pressure is weakness of the heart action, due either to the deficiency in amount or to the character of the blood itself. One of the most frequent causes of this debasement of the blood is impaired nutrition or some disorder of the digestive organs. There is also generally a marked deficiency of blood coloring matter.

Foods that are rich in iron and blood-restoration substances, such as liver, egg yolk, green leafy vegetables, red meats, and whole-grain cereals, are valuable in treating low blood pressure. Low blood pressure is a symptom which should at once cause you to consult your physician. It should be properly diagnosed and treatment applied accordingly.

BAKED APPLE TAPIOCA

[Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute]

INGREDIENTS

1 c. brown sugar
1 c brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
½ to ½ c. quick-cooking tapioca
½ tsp. nutmeg or cinnamon
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 c. thinly sliced pared cooking apples
Cream

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Place water in top of double boiler over direct heat. Mix sugar, salt and tapioca; add to the water gradually. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; place over boiling water; cook 5 min. Add nutmeg, butter, and apples; turn into a greased 1½-qt. casserole. Cover; bake 1 hour in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. Cool; serve with cream. Serves 6. Half recipe serves 2 or 3.

SERVE with cheese omelet, salad bowl of lettuce, canned lima beans, beets and onions, toasted rolls and coffee for dinner.

Christmas Shopping

Choice Gifts for Gay Girls

By ANNICE BRINK

STREET floors of the big shops are treasure troves of Christmas gifts . . . they'll solve anything from the office helpmate to the girl-of-your-choice problem with speed and efficiency, not forgetting charm!

You'll do exceedingly well with any of these:

Lipstick red suede cloth gloves, nearly elbow length, for $1.95. And remember, this is the year for red!

Branch coral is no longer the special decoration for teachers who have been to Bermuda . . . they attain new chic in triple strand necklaces. Best looking one is dyed turquoise and alternates coral with turquoise strikingly, $3.95.

Spanish red links of plastic, bulky and so long they nearly reach the belt are super-smart, and are only $2. Amazingly light, though they look heavy enough to develop posture problems.

A luxurious air . . . several real ermine tails set off with black velvet bow and gold chains . . . $1. To be clipped at the neckline.

Frou frou purse muff for evening, with zipper compartment, black velvet, laden with pink or blue ostrich fronds which float tenuously. $5.

"Glamour Hoods" will send teenagers into raptures, or winter sportqueens. Brushed rayon that looks like suede cloth, in high or tones, dark colors or white, with initials stamped on, right then and there (on the ascot ends), without charge $1.

Pastel or white sheer overblouses that look like ice cream cake; long, full sleeves, pearl buttons, tailored collars, $2.25.

We'll be glad to tell you the name of the shop where these unusual items are to be found; just phone or write the fashion department.

Louella Parsons, 5 Film Starlets Feted on Tour

Special to Boston Evening American

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—Louella O. Parsons, "First Lady of Hollywood" and famous motion picture columnist for International News Service and the Hearst newspapers, spent Thanksgiving in Chicago yesterday with five of Hollywood's outstanding young feminine stars during a brief stop on their way from San Francisco to Philadelphia.

The group arrived at the Chicago municipal airport aboard a chartered plane and left in the afternoon by train for Philadelphia. They are on an eight weeks' personal tour of the country's leading cities.

With Miss Parsons aboard the plane were Joy Hodges, June Preisser, Arleen Whelan, Susan Hayward and Jane Wyman.

Also aboard was Ronald Reagan the former sports announcer, whose rapid climb to movie fame was one of the sensations of the film capital this year; Mrs. T. E. Preisser mother of the famous June and Cherry Preisser, sister dance team; Mecca Graham, stage manager of the group on this personal appearance tour; Leo Morrison, prominent Hollywood theatrical agent.

A Thanksgiving feast, at which Miss Parsons carved, was held in the Pompeian room of the Congress Hotel.

Marking the new honors that had come to Miss Parsons and other members of the troupe, as they paused in their flight at Albuquerque, N. M., hotel chefs presented her with an Indian head cake inscribed with the name, "Ka-ku-la," meaning "star maker," given her at her induction into the Tewa tribe of the Isleta Pueblo Indians.

At the same time in Albuquerque Miss Parsons was made an honorary colonel, and the starlets were made lieutenant-colonels on the staff of Governor John E. Miles of New Mexico.

San Carlo Opera Stars Away to Grand Start With 'Aida'

Favorites Given Ovation; Capable Chorus Wins Praise

By LEO GAFFNEY

The enjoyment of grand opera—particularly at popular prices—is hardly a perishable passion in Boston.

Often disappointed, sometimes actually deceived by shoestring producers, the town never fails to rally when opera bills are once more hoisted.

In the United States there are but two classes of opera production—the richly expensive, heavily underwritten civic affairs and the hazardous private ventures undertaken for profit.

Fortune Gallo's San Carlo company, best of the latter class is now with us, having begun at the Opera House last night, an eleven-day engagement—part of its 13th annual coast-to-coast tour.

The opera was "Aida," traditional curtain-raiser for many years in the realm of drama-with-music.

Manifestly, Mr. Gallo cannot render seven-dollar panoply for two dollars. And so it is ridiculous to expect it—or to judge it on that basis.

For the price, "Aida" was a sturdy and reliable performance last night, an honest money's worth for those who dote on Verdi's mellow tunes and are willing to take them without livestock, large brass choirs and such frills.

The singers were for the most part familiar here. Aroldo Lindi, as Rhadames proved again that for sheer voice he can send a B-flat hurtling into space with the best of them—and the crowd, as always, reveled in the manly sound.

Norina Greco, young dramatic soprano, overcame a tendency to shrillness in the first scene, smoothed out nicely in the Temple and came grandiloquently to her untimely annihilation in the suffocating vault at the end.

Lyuba Senderowa, deeply seductive Amneris, displayed fleshly charms and a warm and sumptuous contralto.

Harold Kravitt, as Ramfis the High Priest, was once again a resonant and headed bass; Mostyn Thomas risked the audience's visibilities in his colorful-maduro trapping of the Ethiopian King, but retrieved the situation nicely by some lush baritone singing and Richard Wentworth was as impressive as possible as Egypt's gold tipped king.

The scenery palm fringed shores of the Nile and all was suitable, the ballet agreeable, the orchestra executible through no fault of Mr. Gallo's.

The chorus deserves a paragraph by itself. Not much over 30 voices, all told, the San Carlo ensemble makes up in quality what it lacks in size. It has balance, resonance, authority and such concerted action as would do credit to the Metropolitan. You couldn't say fairer than that!

The audience, happily near capacity because of a benefit performance under the auspices of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge of the Order of Sons of Italy in America, was obviously pleased.

The famous arias, from "Celeste Aida" on to the melting duet in the vault, were generously applauded and the singers cordially recalled at the end of each act.

The opera tonight is "Carmen," with Coe Glade, Leola Turner, Sydney Rayner and Mostyn Thomas in the principal roles. Matinees will be given tomorrow and Sunday.

Amateur Audition Night at Globe

Amateurs will put on one of their radio audition concerts at the Globe tonight after the regular burlesque show featuring Sally Keith, Nora Ford and Mandy Kay. Next week the Globe will introduce Rosita Royce, the dancer with the doves.

The Movie Clock appears today on page 45.

Pep, Variety At Boston

The melodious tones of Del Casino are enhancing RKO Boston's vaudeville bill this week, ably supported by Will and Gladys Ahearn, a couple of veterans, whose rope act, comedy and dancing put them in a runner-up position.

In fact, the Western tang of the Ahearn act is so refreshing its atmosphere would readily survive any show not featuring the pleasing personality and voice of Maestro Casino.

"South of the Border," "Begin the Beguine" and two encores made up the well liked Del Casino contribution.

The dance act presented by Jack Lenny and the glamorous blonde Statler twins has plenty of headline class.

Another hit brings Chick and Lee into the spotlight with their comedy impersonations, most of radio types—broadcasters you may have met. And there was plenty of applause also for the capital gymnastic act in which the five Maxellos appear.

On the Boston's screen are "The Escape," melodrama, starring Edward Morris, June Gale and Henry Armetta. "Danger Flight," which also has its thrills, with John Trent as Tailspin Tommy.

Amateurs on Bill At Gayety Tonight

In addition to the burlesque starring Tangia, stylish Spanish dancer, the Gayety will have a radio amateur contest tonight. The "Girls in Arms" show femmes also include Sonny Lovett, Peggy Reynolds, Irma Voglee and Jane Lee.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24—The wholesale sinking of neutral liners on the high seas is not exactly a comedy idea—but the current headlines have given Richard Maibaum an idea for a story for funny man Frank Morgan.

Yesterday M-G-M bought his yarn called "Hurry—I'm Alive" which has a novel twist.

It's about a henpecked family man who is booked to sail for Europe on business and misses his boat at the last minute. The liner is sunk and his name is listed among the missing. Believing this is his chance to escape forever from his temperamental family he fails to report he is alive.

Frank should be very funny as the hero who discovers its more fun to be officially alive than legally dead. William Thiele will direct.

MUNI SUPERB IN MET FILM---FRONTIER EPIC AT KEITH'S

Unique Contrast To Previous Hits

By PEGGY DOYLE

Warners' "We Are Not Alone," the Paul Muni-Jane Bryan co-starring picture now showing on the Metropolitan screen, is simple and unpretentious as it is startling and unique.

Before you jump to the conclusion that this couldn't be so—that these descriptive terms contradict each other—see this beautifully directed and eloquently played film version of James Hilton's stirring novel of the same name.

The story is a quiet, deeply moving tale of a kind and skilled physician, who has a nagging wife and a nervous, imaginative young son, and of a gentle, sensitive Austrian dancer who innocently plunges them into disaster.

The picture's startling and unique qualities are to be found in its un-Hollywoodish ending. Such a deeply tragic and heartbreakingly genuine ending as you might find in Dostoevski but hardly in a made-in-Hollywood production.

In his current role, Muni—now starring in Anderson's beautiful play, "Key Largo," at the Colonial—plays a role in complete contrast to his attention-getting Zola, Pasteur and Juarez portrayals of Warners' lavish biographical productions.

His Dr. David Newcome hasn't the vaguest relation to his striking historical characterizations. A hard-working, gently humorous and quietly sympathetic doctor in a small English town, he is vividly real. His compassionate patience with his neurotic, nagging wife is perfectly understandable, as is his practical psychology in handling the delicate problem of his high-strung and over-imaginative small son. It is a subtle portrayal, expressed with beatuiful directness.

And blending harmoniously with Muni's matchless performance is Jane Bryan's dancer, Leni. This brilliant young actress, whose daughter in Bette Davis' starring picture, "The Old Maid," won raves everywhere, plays Leni with a shining sincerity and simplicity. Her Leni glows with the inner beauty Hilton's wrote into his heroine.

Raymond Severn, as Muni's son, is excellent. His performance is childlike, sensitive and free of child-star tricks. Flora Robson's neurotic wife is in the tradition of her finely etched portraiture. As the servant whose lying testimony provides the guilty verdict in the doctor's and Leni's murder-trial, Una O'Connor rates commendation.

Altogether, Author Hilton must have had a heart-warming reaction after viewing the screen version of his noval. It is an artistic triumph with direction, production, performances and photography of top calibre.

SECOND WEEK AT LOEW'S—James Stewart and Jean Arthur are the stars of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," which is drawing crowded audiences at Loew's State and Orpheum.

John Wayne Perfectly Cast in 'Alleghany Uprising'

Loaded with firewater and firearms, the Indians are again making life miserable for our pioneering forebears in "Alleghany Uprising," the William A. Seiter-directed RKO radio release now unreeling on Keith-Memorial screen.

Pennsylvania's green valleys of pre-Revolutionary days provide the background for more fighting and melodrama than you've seen in a brace of Westerns.

There's a soupcon of romance, it must be admitted, but Cupid and Claire Trevor's hoydenish tavern-wench find it hard-going. She chases John Wayne, who plays Jim Smith, rebel chief of the vigilantes from the start of the picture and he's only slightly in the lead at the picture's finish. We're betting on the gal.

Adapted for the screen by B. J. Wolfson from Neil H. Swanson's novel, "The First Rebel," "Alleghany Uprising" depicts the revolt of Pennsylvania colonists against British soldiery over unscrupulous traders selling guns and ammunition to Indians.

As the red-blooded leader of the frontiersmen, Wayne's Jim Smith is all over the terrain, springing out from behind a tree in Indiana war paint one minute and in his colonial buckskins and coonskin bonnet (just what the girls are wearing this winter) the next, depending on whether his adversaries are redskins or British territorials.

The fighting gets you down before the desperate settlers conquer the British crack military and the tardy intervention of Governor Penn.

Miss Trevor is hardly the type for a frontiersman's fiancee, as Jim Smith seems to have surmised, but Wayne, who co-starred with her in the superb "Stagecoach," is perfectly cast.

Wilfred Lawson as MacDougle, the scout who likes his liquor (by slightly less than he does a good fight, makes the only comedy contribution to the picture. Sorry, we almost forgot John F. Hamilton's professor, another amusing bit.

George Sanders' Captain Swanson, British commander, is one of those stiff-upper lip characterizations and Brian Donlevy's black-hearted Callendar, leader of the iniquitous traders, is also on the leaden side.

The second feature, "Little Accident," Gives Baby Sandy her first opportunity to act her sex—she played a boy in her first two pictures. They'll have to do better by our Sandy if we're to continue to dote on her. This is pretty slap-sticky and routine.

A Christmas Carol

By CHARLES DICKENS

NOW without a word of warning from the Ghost, they stood upon a bleak and desert moor, where monstrous masses of rude stone were cast about, as though it were the burial of giants; and water spread itself wheresoever it listed; or would have done so but for the frost that held it prisoner; and nothing grew but moss and furze and coarse, rank grass.

Down in the west the setting sun had left a streak of fiery red, which glared upon the desolation for an instant like a sullen eye, and frowning lower, lower, lower yet, was lost in the thick gloom of darkest night.

"What place is this?" asked Scrooge.

"A place where miners live, who labor in the bowels of the earth," returned the Spirit. "But they know me. See!"

A light shone from the window of the hut, and swiftly they advanced toward it. Passing through the wall of mud and stone, they found a cheerful company assembled round a glowing fire. An old old man and woman, with their children and their children's children, and another generation beyond that, all decked out gayly in their holiday attire.

The old man, in a voice that seldom rose above the howling of the wind upon the barren waste, was singing them a Christmas song; it had been a very old song when he was a boy; and from time to time they all joined in the chorus. So surely as they raised their voices the old man got quite blithe and loud; and so surely as they stopped his vigor sank again.

JOY EVERYWHERE

Again the Ghost sped on, above the black and heaving sea—on, on, until, being far away, as he told Scrooge, from any shore, they lighted on a ship.

It was a great surprise to Scrooge, while listening to the moaning of the wind and thinking what a solemn thing it was to move on through the lonely darkness over an unknown abyss, whose depths were secrets as profound as death; it was a great surprise to Scrooge, while thus engaged, to hear a hearty laugh. It was a much greater surprise to Scrooge to recognize it as his nephew's and to find himself in a bright, dry, gleaming room, with the Spirit standing smiling by his side and looking at that same nephew with approving affability!

"Ha! ha!" laughed Scrooge's nephew. "Ha, ha, ha!"

If you should happen, by any unlikely chance, to know a man more blessed in a laugh than Scrooge's nephew, all I can say is, I should like to know him, too. Introduce him to me and I'll cultivate his acquaintance.

It is a fair, even-handed, noble adjustment of things that while there is infection in disease and sorrow there is nothing in the world so irresistibly contagious as laughter and good humor. When Scrooge's nephew laughed in this way—holding his sides, rolling his head and twisting his face into the most extravagant contortions—Scrooge's niece, by marriage, laughed as heartily as he. And their assembled friends, being not a bit behindhand roared out lustily.

"Ha, ha! Ha, ha, ha, ha!"

"He said that Christmas was a humbug, as I live!" cried Scrooge's nephew. "He believed it, too!"

"More shame for him, Fred!" said Scrooge's niece, indignantly.

What Has Happened:

SCROOGE, a cynical and embittered man who scoffed at Christmas, is compelled by the Spirits of Yuletide to look back through the years to the image of himself in his happy childhood and young manhood. With a ghost, he looks in upon a Christmas party in one of his employe's home and then hears himself ridiculed by his nephew and nieces.

Altogether she was what you would have called provoking . . .

Scrooge Eavesdrops and Hears Own Family Make Fun of Him

Bless those women! They never do anything by halves. They are always in earnest.

She was very pretty; exceedingly pretty. With a dimpled, surprised-looking, capital face; a ripe little mouth that seemed made to be kissed—as no doubt it was; all kinds of good little dots about her chin that melted into one another when she laughed; and the sunniest pair of eyes you ever saw in any little creature's head. Altogether, she was what you would have called provoking, you know; but satisfactory, too. Oh, perfectly satisfactory!

"He's a comical fellow," said Scrooge's nephew, "that's the truth; and not so pleasant as he might be. However, his offenses carry their own punishment, and I have nothing to say against him."

"I'm sure he is very rich, Fred," hinted Scrooge's niece. "At least, you always tell me so."

"What of that, my dear!" said Scrooge's nephew. "His wealth is of no use to him. He don't do any good with it. He don't make himself comfortable with it. He hasn't the satisfaction of thinking—ha, ha, ha!—that he is never going to benefit us with it."

"I have no patience with him," observed Scrooge's niece. Scrooge's niece's sisters, and all the other ladies, expressed the same opinion.

"Oh, I have!" said Scrooge's nephew. "I am sorry for him; I couldn't be angry with him if I tried. Who suffers by his ill whims! Himself, always. Here he takes it into his head to dislike us, and he won't come and dine with us. What's the consequence? He don't lose much of a dinner."

HIS OWN ENEMY

"Indeed, I think he loses a very good dinner," interupted Scrooge's niece. Everybody else said the same, and they must be allowed to have been competent judges, because they had just had dinner, and with the dessert upon the table, were clustered round the fire by lamplight.

"Well! I am very glad to hear it," said Scrooge's nephew, "because I haven't any great faith in these young housekeepers. What do you say, Topper?"

Topper had clearly got his eyes upon one of Scrooge's niece's sisters, for he answered that a bachelor was a wretched outcast, who had no right to express an opinion on the subject. Whereas Scrooge's niece's sister—the plump one with the lace tucker; not the one with the roses—blushed.

"Do go on, Fred," said Scrooge's niece, clapping her hands. "He never finishes what he begins to say. He is such a ridiculous fellow!"

Scrooge's nephew reveled in another laugh, and as it was impossible to keep the infection off; though the plump sister tried hard to do it with aromatic vinegar; his example was unanimously followed.

"I was only going to say," said Scrooge's nephew, "that the consequence of his taking a dislike to us, and not making merry with us, is, I think, that he loses some pleasant moments, which could do him no harm.

"I am sure he loses pleasanter companions than he can find in his own thoughts, either in his moldy old office or his dusty chambers. I mean to give him the same chance every year, whether he likes it or not, for I pity him. He may rail at Christmas till he dies, but he can't help thinking better of it—I defy him—if he finds me going there, in good temper, year after year, and saying, 'Uncle Scrooge, how are you?' If it only puts him in the vein to leave his poor clerk 50 pounds, that's something; and I think I shoow him yesterday."

After a while they played at forfeits; for it is good to be children sometimes, and never better than at Christmas, when its mighty Founder was a child himself. Stop! There was first a game at blind-man's buff. Of course there was. And I no more believe Topper was really blind than I believe he had eyes in his boots. My opinion is, that it was a done thing between him and Scrooge's nephew; and that the Ghost of Christmas Present knew it.

The way he went after that plump sister in the lace tucker was an outrage on the credulity of human nature. Knocking down the fire-irons, tumbling over the chairs, bumping up against the piano, smothering himself among the curtains, wherever she went there went he!

He always knew where the plump sister was. He wouldn't catch anybody else. If you had fallen up against him (as some of them did) on purpose, he would have made a feint of endeavoring to seize you, which would have been an affront to your understanding, and would instantly have sidled off in the direction of the plump sister.

She often cried out that it wasn't fair, and it really was not. But when at last he caught her; when in spite of all her silken rustlings and her rapid flutterings past him, he got her into a corner whence there was no escape; then his conduct was the most execrable. For his pretending not to know her; his pretending that it was necessary to touch her headdress, and further to assure himself of her identity by pressing a certain ring upon her finger, and a certain chain about her neck; was vile monstrous!

No doubt she told him her opinion of it, when, another blind-man being in office, they were so very confidential together behind the curtains.

Scrooge's niece was not one of the blind-man's buff party, but was made comfortable with a large chair and a footstool, in a snug corner where the Ghost and Scrooge were close behind her. But she joined in the forfeits, and loved her love to admiration with all the letters of the alphabet. Likewise at the game of How, When and Where, she was very great, and, to the secret joy of Scrooge's nephew, beat her sisters hollow, though they were sharp girls too, as Topper could have told you.

A DELIGHTED GHOST

There might have been 20 people there, young and old, but they all played, and so did Scrooge; for, wholly forgetting in the interest he had in what was going on that his voice made no sound in their ears, he sometimes came out with his guess quite loud, and very often guessed right, too, for the sharpest needle, best Whitechapel, warranted not to cut in the eye, was not sharper than Scrooge; blunt as he took it in his head to be.

The Ghost was greatly pleased to find him in this mood, and looked upon him with such favor, that he begged like a boy to be allowed to stay until the guests departed. But this the Spirit said could not be done.

"Here is a new game," said Scrooge. "One-half hour, Spirit, only one!"

It was a game called Yes and No, where Scrooge's nephew had to think of something, and the rest must find out what; he only answering to their questions yes or no, as the case was.

The brisk fire of questioning to which he was exposed, elicited from him that he was thinking of an animal, a live animal, rather a disagreeable animal, a savage animal, an animal that growled and grunted sometimes, and talked sometimes, and lived in London, and walked about the streets, and wasn't made a show of, and wasn't led by anybody, and didn't live in a menagerie, and was never killed in a market, and was not a horse, or an ass, or a cow, or a bull, or a tiger, or a dog, or a pig, or a cat, or a bear.

(What will Scrooge do now? Don't miss tomorrow's delightful chapter.)

WHISTLES

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By CHARLES McGUIRK

"WHEN WILL daddy be home?" Maribel, the baby asked. "Some day soon," Mrs. Hubbell told her. She was a slender, sad-faced woman nearing her forties. She was washing the breakfast dishes.

"He'll be home when he gets good and ready," Bella, the 14-year-old daughter declared tartly, as she mopped the kitchen.

"Bella!" her mother snapped.

"Well, it's truth, isn't it?" Bella insisted. "This is the sixth time he has been away that I can remember and that means about once a year. He's always going. Where [illegible] go?"

"His business takes him away," Mary Hubbell said vaguely.

"Now, mother! You know you're just talking," Bella accused. "Why should his business take him away? He's a house painter, isn't he? And aren't there a lot of houses to paint here in Andrewsville?"

"There's a lot o houses to paint," Mary argued, "but there isn't the money to paint them with. Times are hard."

"And I suppose times are hard only here in Andrewsville," Bella sneered. "I suppose what the papers say about times being hard all over the country isn't so. And if times are hard all over the country why shou dn't he stay home."

"Because," Mary began again vaguely.

"Mother, when will daddy be home?" Maribel persisted. She was five and a little spoiled and every once in a while she missed her father. And when she did, she always asked her mother when he would be home.

And when she asked, Bella, her sister, always started saying bitter things and her mother would talk gently and sadly like she was talking now. Mariel didn't understand it but she would like to. "When will he, mother?"

"I'm not sure," Mary admitted and walked into the other room.

"Mother!" Bella said. "I'm sorry."

WANDERER RETURNS

But her mother didn't say anything. She went right on walking into the dining room and through it into the bedroom. She stood there in the middle of the room and looked vaguely out the window.

She couldn't see very well because there was a mist before her eyes.

She just stood there and let the mist grow until it was tears.

She heard a timid knock on the back door and Bella going to open it. She heard her say, "Daddy!"

A man's voice said, "Hello, Hello, Bella. My, I believe you've grown a little."

There was the sound of a kiss and then she heard Maribel's squeak.

"Daddy! How long are you going to stay this time?"

Mary Hubbell's lips tightened. She dried her eyes with her apron. Then she turned and walked out of the room.

She walked into the kitchen and came to a stop about two steps after she had crossed the threshold.

The Cast of Characters in "Whistles"

JOHN HUBBELL, a victim of wanderlust to whom a train whistle is an invitation to travel.

MARY, his disgusted wife.

She stood there looking, with no expression in her face, at the man who stood there, his arms full of Bella, his face full of uncertainty.

She did not heed Maribel's unnecessary, "Here's Daddy, Mother. He's home." She just kept staring at him.

He, too, was tall and gaunt. There was a day's growth of beard on his face. He wore a faded blue shirt and his clothes were old and dusty but with an atmosphere of cleanliness about them.

His skin was clear and so were his eyes, except that they were vague. He smiled now, a little uncertainly, and said in a low voice,

"Hello, Mary."

"Have you had breakfast?" she asked, ignoring the salutation.

"Why—"

"Go and wash. It'll be ready when you come out."

He looked at her a little longer and there was a sudden hunger in his face. Her eyes wavered away and then came back as if she had reached up with her hands and forced them to look at him.

"Go on," she said.

He went out of the kitchen then and took the way she had taken through the dining-room and in o the bedroom and through it to th bathroom.

She went to the stove and busied herself there, putting on coffee preparing a skillet. She heard his voice. "Mary."

"Have you had breakfast?" she asked, ignoring the salutation.

She paid little attention. She went right on with her cooking. He did not call again. She knew he wouldn't. This whole thing was a ritual. She waited a few minutes, working busily at the stove.

When the things were all going well, she turned them over to Bella. Then she walked into the dining room.

As she expected, she saw a scraggly huddle of green paper on the table. Money. She sorted it out, straightening the bills, counting them as she did so. There was $68 There was also two dollars in silver and copper.

Her face set again, bitterly. Seventy dollars And he had twice sent her $20 from points as far apart as Oklahoma City and Yuma, Ari Seventy and 40 was $110.

Nobody could say that John Hubbell didn't take care of his family Nobody could say he drank or ran around with women or gambled away money that belonged to all of them. Nobody could say he was [illegible]

But everybody did say it. They said he was shiftless and lazy and a tramp. They said he was a hobo who could no more withstand the whistle of a train than a drunkard could withstand the sight and temptation of a bottle.

They said he had women strung out all over the country and when he got tired of Mary, his wife, he upped and went to all of them, one after the other.

And when he got tired of them and had no money, he sneaked home like a dog.

A DIVORCE!

Nice thing, Mary thought bitterly, for a family to have to listen to about their father. Well, she was through listening to it. She would get a divorce and ask for alimony

She knew exactly how much she would ask for, too. She would base it on what he made every year. She ought to know. He hadn't varied a hundred dollars in his annual income in the 15 years they had been married.

If he was the kind of man she just couldn't hold, well, the thing to do was to let him go.

She was still standing there ten minutes later, thinking of the dry, bitter things she would say. Things she had thought of as she lay in their bed through the long nights, listening to those train whistles.

He came out of the bedroom. He was shaven and he had changed his shirt. His clothes were no longer dusty. He was holding the old gray hat he had worn throughout many journeys in his hand. He held it out to her.

"Mary," he said earnestly, "I know you won't believe it but this time it's true. This time, I am home to stay. I am never going to leave you again. You don't know how I missed you and the children. Living like a dog in some of those camps, saving every penny I could to get it home.

"Couple of times I tried to get back But I couldn't [illegible] the train [illegible] turned up.

Mary shook her head.

Yes Mary said shortly. Give me the [illegible]

She stretched [illegible] and [illegible] Then [illegible] through the [illegible] and [illegible] the cellar [illegible] and the [illegible] had been [illegible] she [illegible] and started to [illegible] the [illegible] But something stayed her arm.

It always did. She never could burn the hat. She looked up the stairs quickly, and then she furtively thrust the hat into a corner and walked up the stairs with the righteous expression on her face of a Christian woman who has just done a kind thing.

He was at the house for a week before she let him know that she regarded him again as other than a strange and unwelcomed boarder whom she could not evict. It was another week before the warm carelessness of a happy married couple settled down between them.

And John Hubbell was grateful and humble. He was sure now that the madness of going from here to there and from there to there to there was all out of his veins. He loved his little family. He wouldn't leave them for a million dollars ever again.

SECURITY AT LAST!

He worked like a dog. He found odd jobs of painting and carpentering. He dug ditches. He tended furnaces in the better part of Andrewville. Nobody in the town were happier than the four of them

Winter wore away and spring came He saw Mary eyeing him anxiously from time to time but he just smiled to himself. All that foolishness had passed. A whistle was just a whistle to him.

Summer passed and autumn and another winter. Mary was happier than she could ever believe possible. John laughed at what a dog-goned fool he had once been. He was lying in bed one June night. There was the rumble of thunder in the hot night. And then he heard the whistle. There was a new note in it, or rather an old note. One which grabbed him by the hair and lifted him out of bed. It said:

"Whoo-ooo. Where-ere-ere."

He got up and dressed quietly as he could, so as not to wake Mary. She never stirred. He got all his clothes on. He picked up his shoes and carried them out of the room. He was just in the dining-room when he heard Mary's voice saying:

"The hat is down in the northeast corner of the cellar."

He went down and got it and sneaked slumedly away toward the railroad from whence came the whistle which had murmured, "Who-ooo. Where-ere-ere."

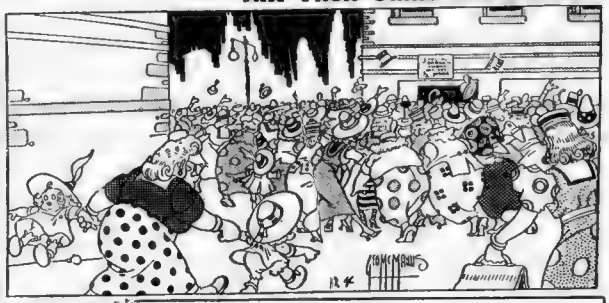
And Then Came the Storm!



Harvard Brewing Co. Reports Profit of $168,964 for Year

The Harvard Brewing co. reported a net profit of $168,964.18 after provision for income taxes and all charges, for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1939, equal, after preferred dividends, to 31 cents per share on the 544,900 shares of common stock.

This compares with a net loss of $32,403.57 for the previous fiscal year, according to the annual report issued to stockholders.

Walter E. Guyette, president of the Harvard Brewing Co., pointed out in his letter to stockholders that cash on hand is more than sufficient to pay all outstanding current liabilities. The ratio of total current assets to total current liabilities on September 30, 1939, was 2.64 to 1.

Guyette further stated:

"During the fiscal year under review, the Harvard Brewing Co. paid an annual dividend of 5 cents per share on the common stock; and called for redemption on December 31, 1939, 25 per cent (250 shares) of the outstanding preferred stock."

Small Advances Dominate Dull Market Dealings

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—The majority of stocks negotiated a small-sized advance in today's market, but numerous issues lingered at or under Tuesday's pre-holiday levels.

With trading volume negligible from the start, prices were a shade irregular near mid-day.

Accorded mild support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, U. S. Rubber, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Kennecott, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Sperry, duPont, Cluett Peabody, American Radiator and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit.

Backward were General Motors, Chrysler, International Harvester, Air Reduction, Union Carbide, Santa Fe, North American and Texas Corp.

Dividends and earnings statements served to prop individual issues and lightness of selling elsewhere was viewed as encouraging by market analysts. Business news, generally, was on the side of recovery contingents. European war developments again were unexciting marketwise.

Bonds and commodities were narrow and quiet. Foreign securities markets maintained a fairly steady tone.

Financial quarters were heartened by week-end merchandising reviews which reported retail purchasing activity, helped by favorable weather and Thanksgiving Day preparations, reached a new high for the year.

Dun & Bradstreet estimated the spending volume for the country as a whole topped the same week last year by 8 to 13 per cent.

While clearances of fall goods were advertised by merchants in some cities, the survey said, many stores showed a disposition to defer special sales until a later date than usual because of strong inventory positions.

Carloadings Decline

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 771,404 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 14,557 cars, or 1.9 per cent, compared with the preceding week.

N. E. Retail Sales Volume Increases

Retail sales reports march to the front of the New England recovery parade in the past week . . . Spurred on by the opening of the Christmas shopping season volume lifted from five to nine per cent above 1938 levels . . .

HOLIDAY . . . Buying is off to an earlier start than last year and all indications point to a record-breaking performance in the weeks to come . . . New England with its huge savings and fattened industrial payrolls promises to be among the leaders in the sweeping retail sales volume upthrust . . . Most interesting merchandise sidelight is the trend toward so-called luxury items . . . Formal wear buying tempos increased all over the country while expensive lines moved more easily . . . Thus is proof offered that this phase of improvement is not a hand made affair . . . But a natural outgrowth of booming purchasing power in the hands of people who have covered necessary needs and are now satisfying long dormant desires for the better things of living . . .

INDUSTRY . . . In the northeast section is verging on the usual slack period preceding the turn of the year . . . And observers are anxiously eyeing production figures and new order indications for signs of a serious letdown . . . While it is still early to take a positive view there are already clear cut signs of strength that should prevent serious slumps in important directions . . . Shoes and leather for instance are dull but prices are steady again after the slide from September highs . . . The Boston wool market is inactive but inquiry is improved and a disposition to resume trading apparent even though prices have not retreated very far top marks . . .

TARGETS AGAIN . . . Such is the two word comment of a State st. broker to inquiries on utilities . . . Administration stalwarts are expected to open fire on the power and light companies under cover of a defense plan barrage . . . Just how serious this latest move will prove we don't pretend to know . . . But it must be apparent to everyone that it will hardly bolster confidence . . . And business confidence is the big need of the moment . . . Point to remember is that some of the most important proposals will require Congressional approval . . . These may not be forthcoming with alacrity.

NOTEBOOK . . . We hear more good news on individual companies at present than at any time in all the years since the depression low . . . 1937 does not compare in any way because cheerful bits now con- in a much larger cross section industry . . . Samples: Illinois ntral in October enjoyed the best month in its history . . . beock & Wilcox faces a sharp rnings gain in 1940 . . . On the sis of unfilled orders one ob- rver says $3 to $4 a share is to expected on the common stock . . Westvaco Chlorine is down for .75 a share net this year . . . eavy industry and railroads are tting into profit positions and at makes a big difference in re- very . . .

THE INDEX . . . Of cotton deries is still a prime business end indicator even though the bre, has been tumbled from a ng's throne . . . Inroads by competitive fibres and radical style hanges wrought tremendous hanges in consumption . . . But he total forwardings to cotton ills still reaches lordly proportions . . . Growing, moving and processing cotton is of great importance to the whole U. S. economy . . . And when the figures climb as sharply as they have this year it means general trade is in a healthy position.

1939 Profit Seen For U. S. Rails

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP)—Despite a deficit of $91,765,684 in the first six months, the nation's $26,000,000,000 railroad industry now confidently expects to end 1939 with a profit of $65,300,000 to $80,000,000.

The latest report of the Association of American Railroads shows a nine-month deficit, after fixed charges, of $33,267,000 for Class 1 railroads, but informed railroad men predicted today that continued favorable business in October was more than sufficient to put them in the black. With profits practically assured for November and December, they expect the carriers not only to offset their losses, but also to earn a substantial profit.

Will Autograph Copies of Book

Louise Andrews Kent whose new novel of Boston and Vermont has topped the best-seller lists, will autograph copies of this warm and witty story, tomorrow in the Jordan Marsh Book Shop at 2:30.

Born in Brookline, Mrs. Kent followed a number of lively stories for children with "The Terrace," her first novel published in 1934. "Paul Revere Square," her second, has been called "as Boston as Symphony on Friday afternoon . . . as Vermont as maple sugar"—and in between all this writing, Mrs Kent has found time for activities in the Vincent Club, on the governing board of the Women's Industrial Union and as trustee for the Park School in Brookline.

Her varied background ranges from Simmons College to the Sewing Circle, and like her new novel, from Chestnut st. on Beacon Hill to Kent's Corner in the heart of the Green Mountains.

Her Faith Shaken, But Recovers Violin

A Long Island Hospital nurse's faith in the patients she seeks to cure is a bit shaken today, but no material damage has been done, thanks to the Boston harbor police.

Mrs. Lucy McDonough, the nurse, lent her $100 violin to a hospitalized musician nearly three years ago. Recently Mrs. McDonough grew anxious about the instrument and called in harbor police. Special Officer Daniel Doyle traced it through pawnshops and eventually recovered it.

ARM-BAND FOR JEWS

CRACOW, Nov. 24 (INS)—All Jews in this district of Cracow, in what formerly was Poland, will be forced to wear an arm-band showing the Star of Zion on their right sleeve under a decree made public today.

Kennedy Due For Yule Here

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy will leave for home shortly to celebrate Christmas with his family and to consult with the State Department.

The nature of the consultation was not disclosed in the embassy's announcement yesterday that he had been called home by the State Department for talks. He planned to leave Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 3 on a clipper plane.

5000-ACRE BRUSH FIRE

SANTA PAULA, Cal., Nov. 24 (INS)—Barely a mile from the outskirts of Santa Paula, more than 400 men battled a huge brush and timber fire today. At least 5000 acres of land had been devastated.

AUSTEN LAKE

H Hour at Stadium; Yale-Harvard Tableau

SOON AFTER NOON TOMORROW THE LAST Harvard player will stuff the end of his shirttail under his kidney pads and lace his felt corset snug beneath his ribs. The last player will give himself a final shrug into his harness, ease his shoulder-guard elastics under his armpits and stretch the sweat-dried stiffness of the canvas cups on his knees.

AUSTEN LAKE

Student managers in dungarees will hover around to valet the athletes in their last needs and a stilly tension will settle over the locker room as Coach Dick Harlow, ulstered and hatted, begins to prowl between the benches where the varsity squats like barbottles of vin rouge with helmets like corks of red sealing wax.

Every ex-varsity player knows the pre-Big-Game feeling!

Harlow will start his valedictory calmly like an episcopal benediction, "We've been through a hard season together . . ." The room will reek with stale perspiration, dried leather and liniment—smells beloved to the nostrils of all old time athletes. "Some of you are playing your last game . . ." A tremor will pass over the group. Brides must feel like this while waiting for the first organ peal and the last long stroll down the aisle. Or infantrymen as they poise on the firestep waiting for H hour and the squeal of a sergeant's whistle. Blood pulses in the ears!

Pre-Game Lethargy

OUTSIDE ON THE CINDERED WALKS there will be a belated crunch of stragglers. Crowd noises come thinly through the closed windows—tootles of band music, a thump of drums, the hollow whine of a November wind, the staccato yammer of the cheering sections. "Hug that ball. Remember Dartmouth . . ." Eyes grow narrow. Lips grow thin.

Always at such times a drowsy lethargy succeeds the first tingle, a detached feeling as nerves react against overload. Fighters feel this in the moments before the call to the ring. Or prisoners before receiving sentence. Veins seem filled with warm molasses. Time is not. Space is not. "Bump those tackles, keep bumping them." A leaky shower tap drips like the tick of eternity's clock. A passer by laughs in the hallway. How can anybody laugh?

Details that will come back in later years with photographic sharpness—the blue cotton cartons, bottles and ammonia crackers in the trainer's satchel, the unfilled paper cups in the water carrier's tray, the red rubber sponges in the pails, the shine of fresh grease on the player's boots, the circle of faces like penitents receiving absolution.

Hahvud . . . ruh . . . ruh . . . ruh!

HARLOW WILL LOOK AT HIS WRIST WATCH, his broad face serious. "Now go out and get 'em . . ." The final spasmodic scraping of cleats on the concrete floor. The rhythmic rush down the hall with each step echoing, "Get-em, go-get-em." The sudden shock of cold air and the faint autumn smell of smouldering leaves. Now, as the players emerge from the steel work of the stands, maybe the early Christians felt like this on going to the lions. A sea of faces, waving, screaming as white-flannelled cheer-leaders ragdoll along the sidelines. "Haaah-yud . . . Haaahvud . . . ruh, ruh, ruh, ruh . . ."

Yonder, spilling simultaneously through an opposite portal comes Yale, the blueness of their jerseys and the whiteness of their helmets irritating. What is it they say—all Yale men grind down their back molars by repetitious growlings of "Yay-ul" with soul-felt inflection. Briefly the Hahvuds and Yalses will stretch their necks for mutual examination, feeling some of the same morbid curiosity that A. E. F. soldiers felt when seeing their first line of Heinie skirmishers in feldgrau. ("Get-em, go-get-em").

Harlow will link arms paternally with his captain, Torby Macdonald, peering aloft for wind direction from the flags flying on the Stadium rim and tossings prays of turf. "If you win the toss . . ."

The Annual Big Moment

THAT BLOCKY, CURLY-HAIRED YOUTH in blue who is shaking hands with the officials in the middle of the pitch is Bill Stack, cold, calm and solemn. ("Go-get-em.") The chunky man in white linen, with a smiling kewpie countenance and red hair is Friesel, the referee. "Mr. Macdonald meet Mr. Stack" and there will be last minute, parlor courtesies and quick ducks of acknowledgment as Friesel harangues the boys on pre-game formulae, including the trust for a wholesome contest.

An ear-splitting hush will fall over the big crater, making audible the distant chatter of portable typewriters and telegraph "bugs" from the long press shed on the western heights where 300 pairs of professional eyes peer down to flash the flip of the coin and to begin dictating leads for the early supper editions.

"Your choice as the visiting captain, Mr. Stack," says the referee unctiously, cocking a thumb under a half-dollar and spinning it in a bright arc. "Heads." Stack will breathe automatically, looking humpbacked from the bulges of his shoulder gear. Six heads bend as the coin nestles in the close-cropped grass.

Friesel will place his hands on the back of the lucky winner, holding it there briefly as a signal to the press steward in the upstairs gallery. A growl comes through the electric amplifiers making the announcement. "We'll kick," and "We'll defend that goal," selections recited from well-learned options. Hasty handshakes! Perfunctory good lucks! A scamper in opposite directions!

A deep throated, expectant rumble will come from the crowd as the Blue and the Crimson break from their sideline huddles and spread, fan-shaped, over the field, shaking fists for mutual encouragement and yipping fraternally. A thin, metallic ribbon of sound! The annual Big Moment! "Get-em. Go-get-em."

Crimson Prepared For Yale Passes

By DAVE GLUECK

With the seasons last intensive practice behind them, Harvard is ready for Yale. Spurred on by the presence of several H men who have returned to Cambridge for the classic rendezvous, the Crimsons went through the two-hour practice with a snap and eagerness that only makes its appearance during this all important week.

Harlow started off with a long drill against Yale plays which particularly emphasized the Burr thrown passes. Wes Fesler, Harvard's ace impersonator was throwing the Blue aerials with his usual accuracy, but the Crimson secondary was alert and effective in knocking them down.

They seem to have benefited greatly from the week's work on Eli passes and this must be a source of considerable relief to their great bald mentor.

If Yale wins tomorrow, it will be because Harvard's air protection falls down and every one from water boy to Ducky Pond knows it. The Crimson frontier won't give for many first downs, averaging almost 200 pounds from end to end.

These youngsters have a charge that would keep them in a ball game with any of the country's famous teams. Hovey Seymour, Yale's best running back is a 195-pound pile driver who's best work is done off tackle or through center.

MILLER IMPROVED

This is just the section of the Crimson defense that has shown most improvement. Dick Phister and Chub Peabody guards, have come fast in the weeks since Penn gave them their first real power test.

Tom Healey has been the best man in the line all year, but the greatest improvement has been shown by Vern Miller 270 pound left tackle.

For the first two games, due to his inexperience, Miller was trapped and run over frequently the scouts picked this up, and every team that has played Harvard since opened the game with a play aimed at Miller, and continued to bang at him for most of the sixty minutes.

This wasn't always good for Harvard but it certainly helped Miller. He has learned to stay lower, and meet plays with the full force of his superior weight.

So Harlow isn't worrying too much about his line on defense. If the boys behind will do their part, by tuning in sweeps and knocking down passes, Yale won't gain enough ground to raise a good crop of dandelions.

But this won't win the ball game, and the famous Harlow offense will have to come through with some kind of score if the season is to end with a real success. Much time has been spent arming the boys with plays designed to pierce the various Eli defenses yet the best way to treat a team that consist-

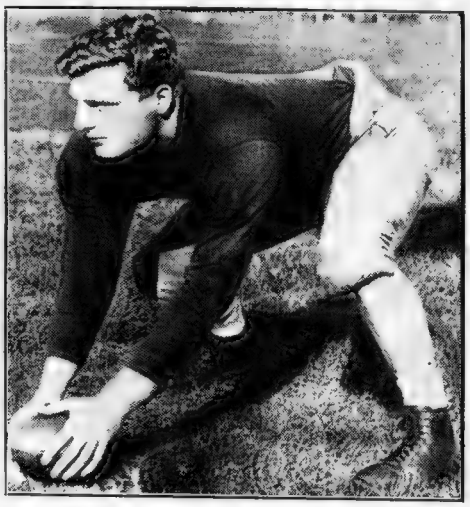
BULLETIN

The Yale football squad left New Haven this morning at 9:30 and detrained at Back Bay station, Boston, at 12:37 p. m.

The boys in blue went directly to the Stadium and worked out from 1:30 to 2:30 p. m.

Their headquarters are at the Hotel Sheraton.



BLUE'S BEST BET—Capt. Bill Stack of Yale, a standout center, faces a hard assignment as he steers his Bulldogs against Harvard. He was banged up in the Princeton game a week back, but is reported fit for the climax game, after several days of rest.

COACH DUTTON READS RIOT ACT TO N. Y. PLAYERS

DETROIT, Nov. 24 (AP)—Angered by his team's fifth straight defeat, Mervyn (Red) Dutton, manager of the New York Americans, told his athletes that he intended to "tear this hockey wide open."

"I've gone along with you fellows long enough," Dutton said in a talk to the Amerks after their 5 to 2 loss at the hands of the Detroit Red Wings. "We will practice here at 1 o'clock Friday and you guys might as well bring your railroad timetables with you. We are going to make changes and we might as well make them now."

CANCEL GERMAN OLYMPICS

BERLIN, Nov. 24 (AP)—Cancellation of the winter Olympic games, scheduled for Garmisch-Partenkirchen, was announced today by Hans von Tschammer Osten, Reich sports leader.

The German Olympic committee and the organization committee for the games took the action in view of a resolution of the international Olympic committee that a belligerent country cannot hold the games.

Previously, Japan had given up both the summer and winter games.

The statement said that "because Germany's proposals for bringing about world peace were declined by the English and French governments and therefore the war must be continued, Germany returns the commission to conduct the games to the international Olympic committee."

Construction work on the new artificial ice rink, the bath and swimming house and ski stadium was nearing completion.

Finns Determined to Hold Summer Meet

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—The officers of the American Olympic Committee said today that Hans von Tschammer-Osten, German sports leader, was not empowered to cancel the 1940 Winter Olympic games, but could merely reject them on Germany's behalf and return them to the International Olympic Committee.

However, since the games must be held during 1940 and were scheduled for February, it is extremely doubtful that the I. O. C. will be able to award them to any other country in time for that country to make adequate preparations.

Finland, at last report, still was determined to hold the main Olympic games, scheduled for Helsinki July 20-Aug. 4.

While the Finns have announced they will reach no definite decision until March or April, there is a strong feeling among Olympic officials here that the Finns will try to maintain the continuity of the games even if it should mean staging them with only the Scandinavian nations as participants.

The American Olympic Committee office said that, under the State Department's present rule of not issuing passports for European travel except under extraordinary circumstances, it was doubtful if the United States would be willing to send a team abroad.

Lions Captain Back in Uniform

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Taking advantage of the Thanksgiving Day recess of classes, the Columbia Lions held an early practice session in preparing for their game Saturday with Colgate's Red Raiders.

Captain Frank Stulgaitis was in uniform and took a light part in the workout, alternating at end with his fellow Wilkes-Barre, Pa., townsman, Harry Kinsella.

'IRISH' GAME MAGNET

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (INS)—Notre Dame today holds the top spot of midwestern football despite the final thrusts of Ohio State and Iowa for the Big Ten championship in the last games of the campaign for all three elevens.

Every gridiron follower in this area is intensely concerned over the outcome of the battle at South Bend tomorrow between the Irish and the powerful Trojans of Southern California, rated by many critics as the country's greatest team.

Just as Notre Dame invaded the coast nine years ago on the short end, so does Southern California come into South Bend tomorrow again a rousing favorite to win, possibly by a couple of touchdowns.

Toczlowski, Davis Return To B. C. Lineup

Head Coach Frank Leahy announced yesterday that his Boston College squad, with one exception, would be at top physical strength for its intersectional clash with the Kansas State Wildcats tomorrow afternoon at Fenway Park. The game will start at 1:30 p. m.

Henry "The Hammer" Toczlowski and Frank Davis, first string quarterback and second string fullback respectively, will be available.

Quarterback Toczlowski's reappearance in the Boston College starting lineup will mark the only difference in the eleven which answered the initial whistle in last week's Terrier tussle.

Frank Davis returned to classes Monday, and practiced Tuesday. The Somerville sophomore lost 9 pounds during his illness and now weighs but 172.

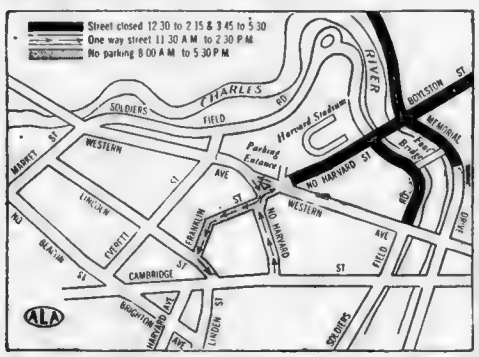
The Kansans expect to show Boston plenty of football and are pointing for an upset win.

Unlike some teams of their neighborhood the Wildcats don't go in very heavily for the razzle dazzle stuff—they roll along the ground for the most part.

Playing its last game of the season the Wes Fry club can shoot the works. Boston College, on the other hand, has its traditional clash with Holy Cross coming one week from tomorrow and under the circumstances will have to feel its way before opening up completely.

Kansas has its Melvin Seelye 175 pounds of triple threat quarterback but Boston College can easily match it with high scoring Vito Ananis.

The Wildcats have a great end in Don Crumbaker, a lad who catches passes and plays an outstanding defensive wing game, but Lahy's Dick Harrison, Gene Goodreault and Alex Lukachik are just good enough to emulate and perhaps surpass anything Crumbaker does.



FOOD FOR THOUGHT—If you'd avoid tomorrow's Cambridge traffic jam incident to the Harvard-Yale game, study this special map. Legend in upper left corner of map explains traffic regulations.

Bruins Order Shore to Play

Eddie Shore must live up to his Bruins contract. Though the Bruins announcement that he would be on hand for the Rangers game Sunday didn't say so much, the owner of the Springfield Indians must and will be present.

EDDIE SHORE
Ordered to report

Shore is contracted to play all home games for the Bruins up to Dec. 15. He asked permission to play with his Springfield team, which hasn't been doing so well.

This request was denied by Manager Art Ross, who said:

"We couldn't possibly allow Eddie to play with Springfield and I told him so.

"In the first place, since he already has played two games with us, the moment he stepped on the ice with Springfield he would have to wait two weeks before he would be eligible to play another game with us.

"Furthermore, Eddie is too great a player to perform in any other league than the National Hockey League.

"Consequently, with full approbation from Pres. Weston Adams," continued Ross, "I have told Eddie that the Bruins will expect him to live up to the contract upon which he originally agreed with us.

"That calls for him to play all home games and all play-off contests with us after Dec. 15 if we call on him. It also has a clause which allows us to call on him before that date if we met with an accident which we did in the case of Jack Crawford.

"However," went on Ross, "we have left it up to Eddie to decide on this latter phase. I asked Eddie to play all home games until Crawford returns. He told me today he will play Sunday night and then decide about the three other home games that are still on our schedule before Dec. 15. After that date the Bruins will expect him to live up to the terms of the original agreement. If he refuses then some other steps will have to be taken to decide his case. Until then we hope to let the matter rest."

Grid Injury Fatal to West Coast Player

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 24 (AP)—Paul Becker, 247-pound center on the California Institute of Technology football team, died, 24 hours after his skull was fractured in a Cal.-Tech. game with La Verne College.

Imprints of shoe cleats were found on his head. He was injured in a pile-up of players in the third quarter of the game, which Cal.-Tech won 13-7.

Becker, 19, was considered one of the outstanding centers of the Southern California football conference.

Tigers Through With Daily Drills

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 24 (AP)—Princeton held its last practice of the year on University Field for the Navy tilt tomorrow.

A Thanksgiving dinner was served the team at a decorated training table in Osborne Field House yesterday.

Navy will arrive in Princeton tomorrow noon on the special Annapolis train.

Commerce Whips Mechanics, 18-7

Commerce High pulled one out of the basket when they beat the favorite, Mechanic Arts, 18 to 7, at National League Field. Charlestown was on the long end of their contest with East Boston, winning, 6 to 0.

PRIEST RETURNS TO WARS

Al "Red" Priest of Cambridge 147 pound New England amateur champion today entered the American-Record third elimination series of bouts at the Boston Arena Monday night.

Red is gunning for a chance to meet Bill Tordiglione of Boston in the New England finals at the Garden Dec. 11. But before he qualifies for the big joust he must wade through a tough field of contestants Monday. According to late reports, Red is in tip top shape for Monday's fights.

Bouts will be staged in 10 classes—eight for the experienced boxers in all championship weights, flyweight to heavyweight, while the novices will fight at 126 and 147 pounds.

Many outstanding boxers signed up yesterday, including Frank Armano, Roslindale, Harold Harris, Malden and Bob Halliday, Newport, R. I., in the 118. Johnny Corriero, Newport, R. I., in the 126. Steve Bonal, No. Chelmsford, in the 135. Jimmy Taylor, Lowell, and Thomas Albanese, East Boston, in the 147.

Thomas Hill, Lowell, and Frankie Wooden, Newport, R. I., in the 160. Henry Brooks, Boston, in the 126 novice and Joe Cambria, East Boston, in the 147 pounds novice class.

Indians Upset Richmond, 7 to 0

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 24 (AP)—William and Mary's Indians scored their second upset within a week by trouncing the previously undefeated University of Richmond football team, 7 to 0, before 12,000 spectators.

The winning touchdown came in the third period to climax a march of 80 yards. Jimmy Howard, sophomore back, went over from the six-inch mark.

Police Use Gas, Clubs to Quell School Riot

DARBY, Pa., Nov. 24 (AP)—Police used tear gas and night sticks to quell a 30-minute riot touched off by a bitterly-contested football game between Darby and Collingdale high schools.

One youth received a broken arm, another was knocked unconscious and about 50 others wound up with bloody noses and black eyes.

The rioting began when Collingdale followers, celebrating their school's first victory of Darby in 13 years, attempted to tear down the cast iron pipe goal posts.

Olympus Victor In $10,000 Race

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 24 (AP)—Olympus, imported English stakes winner, grabbed the lead in the final furlong to win the $10,000 added Bryan and O'Hara Memorial Handicap, feature of the holiday program, by two lengths before 23,000 fans.

The winner, owned by William Woodward's Belair stud, finished the mile and three-sixteenths in 2:02. Aluminio came in to place, with War Minstrel in the third spot. The winner paid $10.60 for $2.

Salem Tilt With Saugus Tops Card

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

You couldn't ask for a thinner slice of schoolboy activity than will be offered tomorrow afternoon, but while the majority of the leaders are resting for Thanksgiving Day clashes there may be a few important developments along the North Shore.

In a newly scheduled game Salem will invade Stackpole Field to meet Saugus in the outstanding attraction of the half dozen games slated.

After much dickering back and forth earlier in the week, this tilt was finally settled along with the rite, to the satisfaction of all. This addition was more than welcome, for it lifts an otherwise drab afternoon to an interesting Saturday.

Coach Buzz Harvey's Sachems have been sweeping their way to supremacy on the North Shore, only last week swamping Marblehead by a 40-0 count, so that the former Holy Cross star believes his squad the best in the state. This tilt will offer a fine opportunity for Harvey's boys to back their coach's statement.

MUST STOP HARRINGTON

John Harrington and Ed Shipulski have been the big threats in the Saugus offensive, and this pair of ball carriers will have to be stopped if the Witches hope to win.

Last Saturday, Salem polished off Peabody with Neil Dooley and Stan Jaworski leading the team to victory. These two lads have been serious scoring threats for the Witches and will prove hard to handle in any park.

This addition to the schedule makes a total of 12 games for Coach Bill Broderick's outfit, the longest program in the state.

Brockton's boomerang to state honors should step along at the expense of Rogers high of Newport, Rhode Island, a class B team. The invaders will apparently offter little opposition to Bernie Lanoue and Billy Gold as the Shoe City club continues along its undefeated path.

WALTHAM ACTIVE

Waltham, Brockton's Turkey Day rival, faces a stiff test with the invasion of Providence Central, but should pull through with another victory. Last week, the Watch City club smacked Newton in a fine workout for this encounter.

A Catholic League postponement will give the intown fans a bit of action at Fens Stadium when Cathedral classes with St. Clement's of Somerville. Coach Jack McCarthy's South Enders recently tied St. Charles of Waltham and loom as the favorites over their Somerville rivals.

DYER CAPTAIN

ORONO, Me., Nov. 24 (AP)—Halfback Dick Dyer of Portland was elected honorary captain of the University of Maine football team.

O'Brien's Passes Save Eagles' Bacon

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23 (AP)—Davey O'Brien and Fianny Murray pitched and kicked the Philadelphia Eagles to their first national football league victory of the season today, Davey firing two touchdown passes and Murray kicking a 31-yard field goal for a 17 to 14 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before a crowd of 20,000.

Winners

Hockey Contest Named Monday

The complete set of winners—23 in all—in the recently concluded Daily Record-American Hockey Contest will be announced in all editions of the Record and American next Monday.

First prize winner will receive a pair of reserved season tickets to all home games of the Bruins. Second and third place winners receive a single season ticket and the next 20 finishers will be awarded a pair of tickets for one game.

COACHES' BOARD TO SELECT ALL-SCHOLASTIC GRID TEAM

Recognized leaders of schoolboy football, six members of the coaching ranks will make the final decision on the official All-Scholastic eleven to make its appearance in the Boston Evening American-Daily Record shortly after Thanksgiving Day.

The board of coaches will discuss every candidate forwarded to them before passing the official team for publication.

Fans are invited to make their selections so that no local boy may be left out. If you think that there's any particular boy who may be overlooked, he's sure to be considered if you list him on your entry blank.

This board, as in past years, includes Jim Mansfield, Haverhill; Fred Ostergren, Arlington; Bill Broderick, Salem; Harry Downes, Brookline; Ed 'Skip' Sherlock, Hyde Park and Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English.

On this page there is a blank which will help you line up your team. It is not necessary to use this coupon but for the convenience and uniformity, it will be published in all editions of the American and Record until the deadline, Dec. 2.

The response to the offer made to the schoolboy tipsters to name their choice for the All Scholastic team has brought a flock of mail at this early date

All-Scholastic Eleven

This blank is offered for your convenience in picking an all-scholastic team but it is not necessary that this coupon be used. Please mail entry to the All-Schodastic Board, care of Boston Evening American-Record, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Nominations will close Dec. 2 after which the Board of Coaches will pick the official "All" team.

ently plays out of position, is to block so hard that the running attack clears in spite of this.

DRILL ON PASSES

The boys have been doing just that this week and there is some reason to believe that they will continue to do so tomorrow.

Spreyer and Macdonald have both spent time on their passing, and with five good receivers on the team, the Crimsons should be able to match the Blue passing attack with some lofting passes of their own.

Alex Kevorkian and Chuff Boston, tackle and blocking back on the 1937 and '38 Harvard teams have just returned from University School Cleveland, Ohio, where they had a successful coaching season.

Arnold Horween, former Crimson coach spent part of the practice session in earnest conversation with Dick Harlow. Horween faced the Elis seven times as a coach, and can probably give Harlow some ideas on what to expect from the "stop at nothing" Blues.

The Eli entourage arrives in Boston at 12:37 today and limbered up in the Stadium at 1.30. Harvard will have a short session at 3.30 after which both teams will settle down to wait out the difficult pregame hours.

Starbuck to Replace Eli Leader at Center

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 24 (AP)—Bill Starbuck, Yale's second string center who has seen very little action this year as understudy to the 60-minute Eli captain, Bill Stack, will start at the blocking back post in the traditional struggle with Harvard Saturday, Coach Ducky Pond announced.

Otherwise the lineup will be the same as started last week against Princeton, with Hovey Seymour, Harold Whiteman and Fred Burr completing the backfield. Al Bartholems and Sterling Brinkley will start at end, Bob Brooks and George Seabury at tackle, Jim Dern and Cape Burnam at guard and Stack over the ball.

To bolster the middle of the line Pond promoted Ralph Millard, a sophomore, to second-string center.

"TRACK!" Clear the trails! Skiers! Wax your winged boards now! Start limbering up and get into shape. Practice your Stem turns, Christies, and Tempos in the kitchen, cellar, or backyard.

Get ready; the biggest skiing season ever in New England history looms on a snowy horizon!

Skiing is now a business. There are 100,000 skiers in New England alone who contribute towards making this sport a three million dollar a year industry. And now, with international affairs at a crisis, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine will benefit materially from the thousands who can't ski abroad this winter.

Hence, it is all up to the weather man. If there is plenty of snow in the mountains, "thar's gold in them thar hills!"

ASA C. OSBORN, head of one of Boston's largest ski outfitters, says business is brisk for this early in the season. ROCKWELL STEPHENS, owner of Ski Sports, Inc., likewise reports that things are "looking up." He states that it is still possible to obtain foreign-made skis, but there may be a shortage soon.

Skiers Getting Into Shape On Mt. Washington Slopes

For those lucky souls who desire to get in some pre-season skiing, possible places include the Carriage Road on Mt. Washington at the Halfway House (about forty were there last Sunday), high up on Mt. Greylock in Adams of the Berkshires of this state, and on the Mt. Mansfield Toll Road, Vermont. But anyone going at this early date is taking a chance on finding any snow.

Many new developments have taken place during the past summer, and skiers will be delighted at the improvements made at their favorite spots. On Cannon Mountain monarch of beautiful Franconia Notch, all trails have been graded and widened. A new novice trail has been completed, and the practice slope at the summit has been enlarged. This skier may visit this region Sunday and will present a detailed account in another column.

Veritable miracles have been performed on Cranmore Mountain, at North Conway, N. H. The famous Skimobile now runs to the top of the mountain in two sections, necessitating a change at the old station. The first section has 120 cars instead of 60. These cars have been built up higher to keep out the wind, and have slots to hold skis. The mountain has also been cleared out on the left side of the Skimobile, giving twice as much room for downhill runners.

In the NEWFOUND REGION at Bridgewater, N. H., Mr. Litchfield of the Pasquaney Inn reports that the Pasquaney ski tow has been extended 300 feet. The number of trails are now tripled and the open slopes cut back through the woods so that a run of almost a mile will be possible.

Many Notable Improvements At Belknap Recreation Area

Development of the BELKNAP RECREATIONAL AREA at Gilford, N. H., shows these notable improvements: A new 1150-foot ski tow on the north side of Cobble Mountain, with a capacity of 2000 persons per hour; the 800-foot rope tow on the Phelps slope has been floodlighted for night skiing; capacity of the chair tramway has been enlarged and a new cable installed; parking facilities increased for 500 cars; a new expert ski trail is being laid out by the tramway, and four ski jumps are ready.

FRED NACHBAUR will again have charge of the Area ski school this winter. Fred is a certified instructor, and a very likeable and capable lad.

SKI CLUB SCOOPS: The OSHONI SKI CLUB of Boston has its lodge at Bridgewater, N. H., open and ready for snow to fly. Thirty members enjoyed a week-end there recently . . . The "35" SKI CLUB has leased an annex of the Pasquaney Inn nearby . . . The BLACK AND BLUE TRAIL SMASHERS will occupy their regular quarters in Bristol, N. H., ready for the slalom season . . . Racing circles may hear from the NEWTON SKI RUNNERS and the YANKEE FLYERS this season . . . Add appropriate names, "SITZMARK" CLUB, North Conway.

STUFF ABOUT SKIING: DICK FLANDERS has changed the name of Bybrook Lodge at North Conway to Cranmore Mt. Lodge . . . ART CALLAN, ski instructor at the Eastern Slopes Ski School, has definite possibilities. Watch him go places . . .

CHESTER EMERSON of the Emerson Inn at Intervale, is a former Red Sox player . . .

Free ski instruction will be given to guests at the WELDON HOTEL Greenfield, Mass., during the coming season. This idea certainly promotes the sport. This hotel also boasts a toboggan chute and lighted skating rink and ski tow . . . Under the guidance of Mr. Carpenter, PLYMOUTH INN expects its best season . . .

Noted for its genial hospitality is Fossacroftis in Intervale, handy to scores of slopes . . . Up in Bridgton, Maine, Mrs. Kanaly is trimming up her Christmas Tree Inn for happy skiers . . . Wentworth Prescott, proprietor of Hotel Prescott in Wolfeboro, N. H., has his skis all waxed and his hostelry all set . . .

C. H. Kranefus is building new ski barracks to adjoin his Bonnet Top Cabins in North Conway . . .

Red Wings Trounce Amerks

DETROIT, Nov. 24 (INS)—The Detroit Red Wings staged a fine offensive in the first two periods with the New York Americans and then were forced to play an equally brilliant defensive game in the final session to save themselves from a tie or worse.

They emerged victors by a score of 3 to 2 but only after a series of spectacular saves by Goalie Tiny Thompson had turned back the rushing, fighting Amercs near the close of the contest.

Deacon opened the scoring for the Wings near the half way mark of the first period on a long shot from the Blue line and the home teeam was never headed from there on.

Shortly after Deacon's tally, Armstrong for the Amercs followed suit on a combination with Jackson and Carr.

The Wings forged to the front again at the opening of the second period when Lincombe carried through the entire team and Dillon shot in the rebound. The Wings added another with Murray in the box for tripping. Deacon scored the Wing's final counter on passes from Bruneteau and Howe.

Canadiens Regain Lead; Tie Rangers

MONTREAL, Nov. 24 (INS)—Les Canadiens pressed their luck hard to run their record to six straight games without a loss when they held the New York Rangers to a 1-all tie in a hard fought overtime National Hockey League match.

The Rangers held the league-leading Montrealers scoteless in the first two frames and came through late in the last period to rattle the Habitants with a well-earned goal. Dutch Hiller came through with the counter when the Rangers were short-handed, Pike being off on a penalty. Watson and Hextall were the playmakers.

Three minutes later Polly Drouin gathered in a pass from Trudel and rifled it into the Rangers cage to tie the score.

With less than three minutes of match time to run the Canadiens opened a five-man offensive. While they crowded the Ranger cage seriously, Goalie Dave Kerr booted out the best they had to offer.

Eddie Shore's Indians Lose to Bears, 3 to 2

HERSHEY, Pa., Nov. 24 (AP)—The Hershey Bears trounced Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians, 3 to 2, in the International American Hockey League here to start their climb from the cellar position in the western division.

It was a slam-bang affair, with a fist fight in the first period that sent Reardon and Shannon to the penalty box.

Lamb scored for the Indians in the opener after a brief scrimmage. The Bears didn't rally until late in the first period, when Frost and Kilrea scored.

Both teams added a point in the final period. Terry Reardon's beautiful solo drive down the ice gave the Bears their point. Filmore added another for the Indians.

New Haven Eagles On Short End, 9 to 6

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Indianapolis Capitals maintained their perfect home record in the International-American Hockey League by defeating the New Haven Eagles, 9 to 6, in a wild, free-scoring affair marked by a brilliant last-period rally by the Eagles. A crowd of 6974 saw the game.

The Capitals ran up a 6-to-1 lead in the first two periods and boosted it to 9-to-1 in the third. With less than nine minutes to play, McCully scored on a penalty shot for the Eagles and, with everybody except the goalie massed in attacking territory, the visitors poured in four more goals before the final gun.

Sullivan Only Senior To Start

There will be only one senior in the Boston University starting line-up which plays the University of Tampa in Florida next Friday night.

Capt Paul Sullivan Boston University's iron man leader will be at his usual right tackle berth but the other ten positions will be filled by seven sophomores and three juniors which should mean a bright future for next season.

Ray Hartley and Charlie Cremins at the guards are juniors and another junior classmate is George Pantano the quarterback.

One other possible change will be at left end where Jim MacDonald, a junior may supplant Bill Fuller. MacDonald is by far Boston University's best end but he has been ailing with a bad knee ever since the Manhattan game.

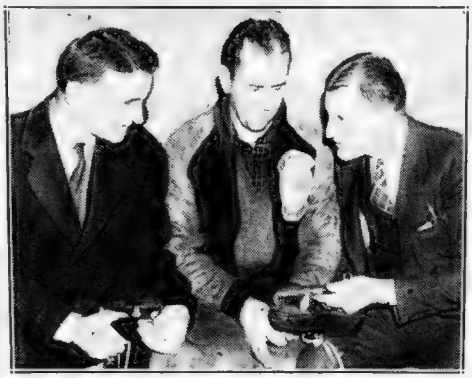
Washington Huskies Trounce Oregon

SEATTLE, Nov. 24 (AP) As fast as Jay Graybeal, the Oregon jackrabbit, hung up points on the scoreboard the University of Washington Huskies knocked them down to win an upset 20 13 football victory over their traditional foes before a Thanksgiving crowd of 25,000



"THESE ARE BETTER." Coach Hago Harrington, Olympics, advises Bill Splaine, left, and Art Smith to use new type of skate on week-end when they face Valleyfield Braves. Olympics fared poorly against Verdun Bulldogs last week, and Harrington is eager for improved showing.

Zannelli Wins Over Devlin

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 24 (AP)—In a fierce battle, which had the crowd on its feet in the last two rounds, Ralph Zannelli, 149, of Providence, R. I., earned a 10-round decision over "Irish Danny" Devlin, 150, of New York, at Fall River Casino.

In the other bouts Joe Plouff of Nashua, N. H., was given a six-round decision over "Irish Jimmy" Smith, Fall River; Ralph Morgan, Boston, defeated Ken Waters, Fall River, in six rounds; Martin Tabor of Providence, scored a technical knockout over Mike Lemme, Fall River, and Eddie Rossi, Everett, defeated Frank Reagan, Fall River.

BULLETS RED HOT

HERSHEY, Pa., Nov. 24 (AP)—Gettysburg rolled up the largest score a Bullet team has ever made against Dickinson in their long gridiron series, overpowering the Red Devils, 49 to 7.

Stiff Grid Schedule For Army

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24 (AP)—Abandoning its policy of bringing two or three small Southern and mid-Western schools to the Point, Army today announced a 1940 football schedule of nine games, eight of them with major opponents and all but one with Eastern teams.

The lone exception was made for the annual battle with Notre Dame, which will be played at New York Nov. 2.

Army, which this year played Furman, Centre, Ursinus and Penn State on its home grounds, next fall also will play four home games. But, after the opener with Williams on Oct. 5, the remaining three will be against rivals of major rank—Cornell on Oct. 12, Lafayette on Oct. 26 and Brown on Nov. 9.

The Cadet team will appear twice in Philadelphia, first against Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, and then against Navy, in the traditional closing game Nov. 30, at the municipal stadium.

In past years, when the Army schedules were marked by numerous "breathers" with such schools as Ursinus, Drake, Washington U. of St. Louis, William and Mary, Knox, Dickinson and Gettysburg, criticism was met with the explanation that these arrangements were due to political pressure brought to bear on the academy's athletic authorities.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

HAROLD PUTNAM has sent me an autographed copy of his book "The Dartmouth Book of Winter Sports" which has been published by A. S. Barnes & Co. of New York . . . Above his signature Putnam wrote:

"To Jack Conway 'Mr. Boston' who has helped stimulate so much interest in skating in New England."

It was always a pleasure for me to write about the skating feats of Putnam and the other Dartmouth stars who, in addition to their activities at Hanover, N. H., found time to come to Boston to compete in the Silver Skates Derby of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser . . . The release of Putnam's book by the publishers also calls attention to the fact that thousands of New England youngsters now tossing footballs will soon be busy skating, snowshoeing and skiing . . . There will be other thousands watching competition in these events.

In his book, Putnam gives the interesting history of the Dartmouth Outing Club which is the largest undergraduate organization at Hanover, N. H. . . . There is an introduction by Putnam with an article on skating by Putnam and Dwight Parkinson . . . Walter Prager writes on skiing, while Putnam discusses Winter carnivals . . . James Simpson and John A. Rand take up the question of Winter carnival organizations . . . There are numerous other interesting articles on Winter sports with appropriate illustrations and lessons on skiing and skating . . . It was in the Silver Skates Derby that Putnam first gained national recognition . . . His book is certain to receive a cordial reception from the public.

Winter sports have made tremendous forward strides during the past few years . . . Snow trains and Winter hotels have helped . . . There is almost as much activity at the New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts and Vermont resorts during the Winter as at the height of the Summer season . . . Ski jumps, toboggan slides, snowshoeing and skating have gained in popularity each year.

Incidentally, the Silver Skates Derby of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser will once more be a feature of the Winter sports season.

Brouillard Signs for Bout on Coast

LOU BROUILLARD of Worcester has signed to clash with Lloyd Marshall in a ten-round bout at Oakland, California, on Dec. 6 . . . Mrs. Brouillard will accompany the former world's welterweight and middleweight champion when he leaves for the Coast . . . It is likely that Lou will also take part in a bout in Los Angeles before he returns East.

Tom Kirby, who in his day was a top boxer, and who is now refereeing amateur boxing bouts, has a good word for Leonard Kiley, 118-pounder who is representing the St. John's C. Y. O. team . . . Kiley will compete in the trial bouts of the American-Record All-America ring tournament at the Arena on Monday night in a novice class . . . The novice classes have furnished much spice for the All-America battles.

Dave Yaffe has gone to Bowie to take in the races . . . Dave says that on account of the deep condition of the track all horses do not run well at Bowie . . . He added that when a horse wins at Bowie he has a better chance of coming back with a repeat triumph than at most tracks . . . Dave will later go to Florida . . . He predicts that Florida will have its biggest season on account of the war.

Jack Sharkey and Mrs. Sharkey tendered a party to Johnny Buckley and Mrs. Buckley and a party of their friends on the latters' 25th wedding anniversary . . . Sharkey told Buckley he would like to be able to present him with a new champion.

Kansas State Has Powerful Eleven

KANSAS STATE will place a powerful team on the field against Boston College at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon . . . The Maroon and Gold will have to flash its best game of football to win . . . With such an important contest on its hands, Boston College has not been able to give too much attention to the Holy Cross contest that will be played a week from tomorrow . . . The Kansas State game will give Boston College an opportunity to sharpen up its play, and if its stars come through the contest uninjured it can go into the Holy Cross game with high hopes.

Fred Lane of the sports department of this newspaper tells me it is common for some bike riders to take stimulants that make it impossible for them to sleep for hours after a contest . . . Fred says he has walked through the night with some of the oldtime bike champs as they have tried to wear off the effects of stimulants . . . You will get details of the use of drugs in sports in "Doped to Win," by Austen Lake, that starts in the Green Magazine Section of the Sunday Advertiser.

While athletes have been stimulated, there have been cases where baseball have been chilled on the ice so that they would lose their pep . . . Big league clubs have slipped the frozen baseballs in against teams that have heavy hitters . . . The league officials finally found out about this practice and took steps to stop it.

Random Shots at Target

THE THANKSGIVING DAY racing program at Bowie yesterday attracted the largest crowd in the history of the Maryland track . . . It looks as if the racing boom is still going merrily forward . . . New Orleans also reported a banner gathering at the opening of its meeting.

There are still tickets for the Harvard-Yale game available . . . It is expected that good weather tomorrow will result in a capacity gathering at the Stadium . . . Harvard is a 2 to 1 favorite . . . Southern California is also a 2 to 1 choice over Notre Dame.

Kelley Third In Marathon

BERWICK, Pa., Nov. 24 (AP)—Lou Gregory, veteran harrier of Manlius, N. Y., repeated his victory of eight years ago by leading a record field of 48 home first in the 32nd annual running of the Berwick marathon.

Gregory, representing the Millrose A. A. of New York, covered the distance of nine miles and 175 yards in 47 minutes, and 50 seconds, eleven seconds faster than his winning time in the 1931 race, although more than a half minute over the course record.

Lloyd Longman, from Forest Village, Toronto, finished second, 100 yards back of Gregory and the same distance in front of smiling Johnny Kelley of Boston E. E. Club.

The favorites who fell before the rugged Berwick course were Ellison (Tarzan) Brown, the Narragansett Indian of Westerly, R. I., and Leslie Pawson, Pawtucket, R. I., Boston marathon winner of last spring. Brown went out at the top of the mile-long Foundryville Hille.

Irish Setter Well Placed, Says Wilson

FIFTH RACE

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 24—Irish Setter ran a bang-up race the last time out at Pimlico when he finished second behind the almost unbeatable Dr. Whinny.

The three-year-old son of Sweep All set a torrid early pace in that test and as entered in the fifth heat at Bowie today and with no such a speedster as Dr. Whinny to contend with, he figures to lead all the way.

Today's Race Scratches

Senegalese to Front—Their worth proven in last World War, French colonial Senegalese machine-gunners set foot on foreign land again to aid their mother country. Here they traverse communication trench to reach front lines.

A Vote for Peace—Pope Pius XII, looking grave and earnest, sits before a microphone in his Vatican City and delivers a stirring appeal for world peace to Catholic University, Washington, D. C., while his church aides stand by him.
